CLEANUP OF TRAFFIC IN NARCOTICS

SIX ARE CAUGHT IN RAID IN COLUMBUS BY INSPECTORS

Thousands of Dollars Spent By Government In Finding Source of Supply Which was In Cleveland—Woman Insists on Having Her Bulldog Accompany Her to Jail, But It Was Taken From Her.

Disruption of an alleged dope ring operating out of Cleveland and thru-out Ohio and Michigan was accomplished Friday by Federal Narcotic Inspectors W. O. McDonald, J. B. Greeson and Kenneth Annis, working under direct supervision of Colonel L. G. Nutt, head of the U. S. narcotic division of the bureau of international revenue.

Smashing of the ring was started several months ago when the agents came to Columbus and began telegraphic negotiations with alleged members of the ring at Cleveland.

Results at Columbus were seen Friday night when Nutt and his inspectors arrested Elmer Emerich, 2333 1/2 East Main street; Louis C. McCudden, 503 West Town street and his wife, Mrs. Myrtle McCudden, and Mrs. Helen Unkrodt, 503 West Town street.

Negotiations by the agents with the C. and dope ring heads started after they had obtained the code used by the ring in sending telegraphic orders for narcotics, the inspectors said. The word "shoes" referred to an ounce of morphine, the word, "chocolate," to a similar quantity of cocaine "milk" and "candy" were used as substitute words occasionally in telegrams, Colonel Nutt said.

David H. Ginby, Murphy hotel, Cleveland, was arrested Thursday, under the name of Joseph Lewis, his arrest being the initial one of the series that resulted in the disruption of the ring, according to Colonel Nutt. He was arrested after he arrived in Columbus with two and one-half ounces of morphine in response to a telegram from McDonald, who had ordered similar shipments from him on previous occasions, the inspectors charged. Thru letters and telegrams found on his person, the officers learned that Harry Goldman, Cleveland, was one of the chief operatives of the ring, the officers said.

Returning to Cleveland they found Goldman and as they were arresting him six of Goldman's accomplices appeared and sought to wrest him from custody. McDonald and Greeson said they fought off the attack, and maintained possession of Goldman, but were unable to take any of the others into custody.

Immediately after Goldman's arrest of the officers said they searched his room at the hotel and found information as to the other ring members there. Acting on this information they went to the Emerick home in West Broad street, where the inspectors say they bought a quantity of cocaine.

McDonald and Greeson next went to Wheeler's home, where they again made a "buy" and seized a quantity of narcotics as evidence they reported.

The final raid of the night was at the McCudden home where they said they seized $75 worth of morphine and a hypodermic needle. Mrs. Unkrodt insisted on having her bulldog accompany her to jail, but it was taken from her at the city prison after a skirmish between her and the prison matron.

McDonald and Greeson said the discovery and disruption of the ring was accomplished only after thousands of dollars had been spent by the government in finding the source of the dope supply in Ohio and neighboring states.

While city and state officers have been arresting many of the minor dope peddlers thruout the state, the real source of supply at Cleveland remained undisturbed and contained its workings until the agents established themselves as actual dope buyers they declared Friday night.

WINDSHIELD WAS BROKEN BY WILD SHOT

Raymond Hill's Foot was Cut by Shattered Glass on North Court Street.

As Harry Hill and his seven-year old son, Raymond, were returning from Columbus Friday morning in an auto and just as their car passed the cemetery, a bullet shot from a distance, hit and passed thru the windshield of the car, barely missing his son's head.

The boy was barefooted and pieces of the shattered glass fell on his right foot cutting an artery in his instep. The wounded boy was taken to Dr. D. V. Courtwright's office where the wound was dressed.

Mr. Hill notified the police department and search was made for the fellow with a gun but he could not be found. It is presumed that the gun toter was firing at squirrels in the cemetery and the shot went wild.

Holes in Cheese

The bureau of dairying does not believe that there is any cheese in which the holes are made by worms. Most cheese in which holes are found is made in such a way as to develop gas which produces a specific organism which causes holes.

WHAT'S THE MATTER WITH CIRCLEVILLE?

The memorial to those soldiers of the Five Points vicinity erected in that village in 1919, puts the blush of shame on the County Seat, which hasn't accomplished anything in that line as yet for the boys of the World's War, who were killed in action or have since died.

Mrs. G. A. Garrett and son, Ralph Emery, went to Ft. Wayne, Indiana, to visit Mrs. Samuel Wetzler.

The primary election will be held in this city Tuesday, August 11. The only contest on the ticket is for the office of city treasurer, and all are Simon pure Democrats. It seems that no Republican cared for the honor enough to run for the job.

The four candidates for this position are W. C. Morris, Christy Voll, Lawrence J. Johnson and George W. Myers.

MILLIONS FOR MAINTENANCE OF OUR ROADS

There are 85,000 Miles of Roads in Ohio and 12,000 Miles of City Streets.

Ohio will spend close to $11,000,000 this year in the upkeep of the 10,000 miles of inter-county highways designated as state routes. Of this amount slightly over $1,000,000 will be derived from county funds. The rest will come from state funds.

In addition to the $11,000,000 for maintenance $12,400,000 is to be spent in new highway construction thru the combined efforts of federal, state and county governments.

This combined maintenance and construction cost, totaling $23,400,000 does not represent the total expenditure of Ohio highways for the year, for it does not take into account tens of thousands of dollars spent by counties and townships in the upkeep of roads of lesser importance. Neither does it take into account the expenditures of cities in paving and maintaining their streets, many of which are used by thru traffic.

There are 85,000 miles of public roads in Ohio outside of municipalities and 12,000 miles of streets in Ohio cities. Out of the total thoroughfare mileage of 97,000 miles in the state 10,000 miles comprise the inter-county highway system, 6,000 miles of which are kept up by the state.

When the budget was made up for the maintenance and repair of state highways, the availability of gas tax funds was not yet assured, so the budget was based on funds outside the revenue from the new 2 cent tax on fuel.

Gas tax money has begun to come into the state treasury so that at present there is available $1,700,000 more for maintenance and repair of highways than the budget estimate took into account. The gas tax revenue will be used in various places over the state as it is needed at points not already provided for in the budget. H. J. Kirk, chief engineer of the bureau of maintenance and repairs, said Friday. In 1926 Kirk estimates there will be still more money available.

Ohio is enabled to spend nearly twice as much for the maintenance of state routes in 1925 as it was in 1921 and more than $4,000,000 more than it was able to spend in 1924.

The increased expense is entirely necessary Kirk says, because the state now is confronted with the proposition of building roads constructed years ago, and now worn out or inadequate for present day traffic. Assuming a life of 20 years for approximately 6000 miles now under state maintenance, we should be rebuilding one-twentieth of 6000, or 300 miles per year," says the division chief. "If we don't build them as fast as they wear out, it becomes necessary to carry on uneconomical patching. We have roads that in 1924 required $3000 per mile for patching. They should have been rebuilt, but the funds were not available."

NEW HOLLAND FIELD DAY.

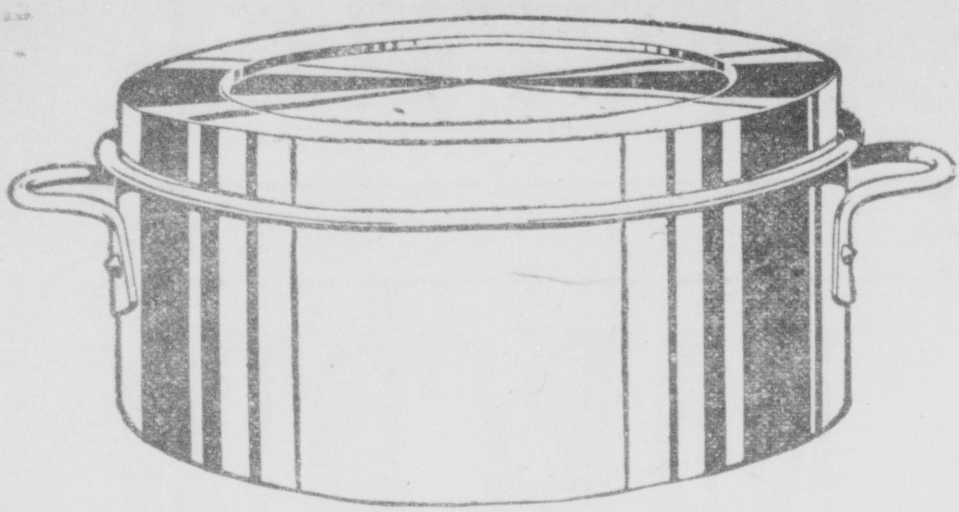

The second annual field day was held at New Holland Thursday. A fish dinner was served by the Men's Bible class of the Church of Christ assisted by the ladies of the church.

Two baseball games were scheduled and played, the first between the New Holland Giants and The Boys' band, which resulted in the score of 3 to 1 in favor of the Giants. The second game between the Giants and the Tigers of Chillicothe, the score was 7 to 5 in favor of the Giants.

The Boys' Industrial School band of Lancaster furnished the music.

James Davidson, George W. Dresbach, Irvin Reid and Louis Holderman leave this evening for a trip to Buffalo, New York and Niagara Falls.

A System of Farming That Brings Health and Prosperity

Every farm, regardless of the method of farming practiced or of the crops raised, should have at least a few good milk cows to provide

- (1) Enough milk, cream and butter for home use;
- (2) Enough skim-milk to raise some calves, pigs and chickens;
- (3) Enough cream or butter to sell to pay, in part or entirely, current living expenses.

This plan has been a "life-saver" for thousands of farmers, especially during the hard times of the past two years. It insures a living, at least, and often other income besides.

Such a plan pays best with a De Laval Cream Separator. It soon pays for itself—and skims cleaner, lasts longer and is easier to operate and clean than any other.

The Surest System Yet

When you hear a story from the man in the street and shortly thereafter go to a vaudeville theater and hear a performer on the stage repeat it, you may know by this sign that it has undoubted merits. It is an evidence of distinction on the part of the story.

Here lately, a popular yarn of other days has been enjoying a theatrical revival. The story has to do with a man describing a poker game which he was invited to join while visiting in a strange town.

"The first hand that was dealt," he says, "I had three. I opened the pot and one other man stayed. He drew one card. We bet back and forth for a while and finally he called. 'I've got three of a kind,' I said, and showed down my three nines. 'I've got a straight—ten high,' he says, and pitches his hand in the deck and reaches for the chips. 'Hold on,' I says, 'I didn't see what you had.' He looks at me sort of surprised and the fellow who's givin' the party speaks up and says to me: 'This is a gentleman's game. If a man wins a pot here we never ask him to show his hand. We just take his word for it that he holds the winning cards and we let it go at that. That's our rule.'"

"Did you keep on playing after that?" asks a bystander.

"Certainly I did," says the first speaker.

"And did you win?"

"Did I win?" Huh—the first pot was the only one I lost!"

No Place for an Outsider

I used to know a New York business man who delighted to tell a yarn of his boyhood. He said that when he was about sixteen years old his father, who was a presiding elder of the M. E. church, took him from his home in Pennsylvania to a town out in Ohio where the son was to be entered in a small college.

"When we got off the train," said my friend, "the whole town seemed to be in a battle. It was a coal-mining district, and two groups of husky miners with fists and clubs were doing their level best to destroy each other. There were 20 fights going on at once! The town marshal was in a doorway looking on calmly."

"I rather enjoyed the sight; but my father as a minister of the gospel was naturally very much shocked. Holding me by the hand, he made for the place where the town marshal stood."

"What does this outrage mean?" the old gentleman demanded.

"This is pay day by the mines," explained the marshal in a strong Teutonic accent, "and every pay day this happens—the Irish miners they fight mit the Welsh miners."

"But why don't you stop it?" asked my father.

"For why should I interfere?" said the marshal simply. "I'm German!"

Narrowing Down to the Facts

There were two brothers; a truthful brother and a brother who was the most incorrigible and persistent liar in the county. As a result of the latter's chronic embellishments of facts the whole family was getting a bad reputation.

The truthful brother took him in hand.

"Look here, Bill," he said, "you're disgracing the name. This thing has got to stop. The next time you start in to exaggerate just keep your eye on me. When you begin to go too far I'll give you a hard look and that'll be a signal to you to begin soft-pedaling."

The very next day the two brothers were in the company of a group of their fellow citizens. The talk drifted to the subject of big city hotels. This was a cue for the liar.

"Speakin' of hotels," he said, "I know a hotel out in California that is twenty-two stories high, has a thousand rooms in it, eight dining-rooms, fourteen bowling alleys, twenty-two swimming pools, thirty soda-water fountains, forty-eight billiard halls and—"

here he caught a hard look from the good brother—"and is three feet and a half wide."

The Current Rate on Suckers

The late Tom Williams dropped into a gambling house in Reno, Nev. one night, and, playing roulette, speedily dropped his roll, but not before he had made up his mind that the game was crooked.

On his way down stairs in deep disgust he met the proprietor, Long Brown.

"What kind of a dump is this you're running?" demanded Williams. "I've just been skinned out of four hundred dollars."

"Who brought you in here?" said Brown.

"I brought myself in," said Williams.

"Oh, if that's the case," said Brown, "I owe you eighty dollars."

"How come?"

"Well, you see, I pay twenty per cent apiece for all suckers that are steered in. You appear to have steered yourself in. Here's your eighty."

THE AMERICAN LEGION

(Copy for This Department Supplied by the American Legion News Service.)

RADIO FUND IS IN HANDS OF LEGION

Administration of the Roxy-Sun radio fund for disabled veterans of the World war is now in the hands of the American Legion. It was announced at national headquarters of the Legion at Indianapolis. The fund was recently transferred to the Legion by Maurice Judd, representing the New York Sun. It amounts to something over $80,000.

The fund is used to provide radio sets for hospitalized veterans in all parts of the United States. It will, it is hoped, be the nucleus for a permanent endowment, which eventually will make a set available to every veteran in a hospital.

The fund was started by S. L. Rothman, known to radio fans as "Roxy," of broadcasting fame. While attending a radio show at Washington, D. C., in May, 1924, Mr. Rothman visited veterans at Walter Reed hospital. He saw an opportunity to bring happiness to them by means of the radio. He enlisted the interest of Mr. Judd in the project.

Returning to New York, Mr. Rothman interested the Sun in the plan. A fund was started. Other newspapers joined in. Nearly $200,000 was raised. Nearly $125,000 was expended in purchasing equipment. It was finally decided to turn the fund over for further administration to the Legion. A check for the amount was presented to National Adjutant Russell Creviston of the Legion recently.

The fund will be administered through a board of trustees. National Commander James A. Drain of the Legion and National Treasurer Robert H. Tyndall are members of the board. Capt. John H. Craig, aide to the commandant of the United States marine corps, who has taken a very active interest in the fund, is a member. John Oliver Lagorce, editor of the National Geographic Magazine, and the Munsey Trust company of Washington are included.

Robert F. Smith, managing editor of the American Legion Weekly, and Marquis James of the staff of the Weekly are members of the board. The American Legion Weekly will have a large part in the active control and management of the fund.

DIVA AIDS FUND

"MOTHER" ERNESTINE SCHUMANN-HEINK, world-famous opera singer, has raised her voice in behalf of the American Legion's $5,000,000 endowment fund for the disabled veterans and orphans of the world war. Schumann-Heink is the mother of four sons who served with the American army in the World war and of another son who went down with his U-boat in a German uniform.

While on tour at Philadelphia the great World War mother made a contribution of $500 to the fund.

"I love America," she said, while writing her $500 contribution. "America took me into its arms and gave me everything. I was poor when I came. America was good to me—so good to me. When the war broke out I saw my duty, my opportunity to pay back a little for the goodness America had been to me."

He Cussed King Albert and Got Medal for It

Henry Himpe's comrades in the American Legion at Omaha, Neb., refer to him as "the only man who cussed a king and got a medal for it."

During the fighting in the trenches in the early days of the war, some one tugged at Himpe's shoulder. Not knowing who his mud-bespattered companion was, Himpe peremptorily told him to "get the h—l out of here or I'll shoot you." It was King Albert of Belgium.

A few days later Himpe was called to headquarters and reprimanded for not being more polite to his comrades. That was the first he knew that the man he threatened to shoot was his own king.

King Al later came to look on the incident as a joke and after the war introduced Himpe to the court as "the man who threatened to kill me."

Himpe recently received notice that he was awarded the Belgian war cross with one palm. He is a chauffeur at Omaha.

Idaho City Beautiful

That Idaho Falls, Idaho, may warrant the title "The City Beautiful" the local American Legion post recently offered prizes to boys and girls who make the prettiest and best gardens. The mayor and council have agreed to donate $50 toward the prizes and to furnish the water for irrigating vacant lots which are to be planted to grass and flowers by the city's young gardeners.

SAFETY RULES IN ELECTRIC STORMS

Student of Lightning Says, "First Get Under Cover."

Milton, Mass.—About this season, as the old almanacs used to say, expect thunder storms. Inevitably they bring danger to human life, but the hazard can be diminished considerably if the advice of men who have made a thorough study of the electrical discharges of the atmosphere is followed.

One of these experts is Alexander G. MacAdie, director of the Blue Hill observatory and professor of meteorology at Harvard university. In the little building on the wind-swept summit of Blue hill, the highest point in eastern Massachusetts and in the midst of the Blue Hill forest reservation, he has spent many years in watching and analyzing the action of the elements.

Studies Thunder Storms.

He has made a special study of thunder storms and some time ago he formulated a set of suggestions to help people take care of themselves during such disturbances. Since that time, he says experience has borne out the value of these suggestions and science has not developed any new means of safeguarding a person against lightning discharges.

Get under cover, is his first rule. If you can't do that, lie down. About ten lightning flashes in a hundred come down to earth in a straight line, and the person who stands out in the open when such flashes are seen, invites trouble. But getting under cover doesn't mean seeking shelter beneath a tree because that will bring you in the direct line of discharge, and Professor MacAdie says more people are killed by lightning in this way than probably any other.

Cut Out Radio.

The doorway of a barn or a window near a chimney also are dangerous places to stand, because lightning follows to some extent any draft of air, especially warm air. When the flashes are heavy or numerous, keep away from chimneys, trees, flagpoles or metal clotheslines, and cut out your radio. You are safer indoors than out. The probability of a person in an ordinary residence building being struck, says Professor MacAdie, is very slight, and dwelling houses in city blocks are virtually safe. He defends the lightning rod, once so popular, but now largely fallen into disuse, asserting that if a house is provided with good lightning rods there is little to fear.

INSURES HER NOSE

Mrs. Blanche Cavitt of Oklahoma City, Okla., a big perfume importer, has had her nose insured by Lloyds for $50,000 in case something might affect her sense of smell. She has now gone to Europe to buy choice perfumes and to attend the Decorative Arts exhibition in Paris.

Mexico City Crimes

Average 102 Per Day

Mexico City.—Barred from police headquarters because, they assert, their papers published the truth about crime in the capital in April and May, police reporters on the leading papers have devoted their efforts to outside investigation.

As a result, they claim to have proofs that, during the early days of May, the crime average reached 102 cases daily.

Investigation of records at the prosecuting attorney's office has disclosed, according to El Universal, that 30,000 cases are consigned annually to the penal courts. During the first trimester of 1924, it is stated, there were 2,267 cases of assault, resulting in injury, and 1,272 of robbery.

Statistics secured at the federal district penitentiary and the Belen and municipal jails, the same paper asserts, show that 70,914 persons were either detained or imprisoned in these institutions during 1924.

Ninety-five per cent of those held for infractions of the penal and civil codes, it is declared, go unpunished.

FLAG STATION REMOVAL SOUGHT BY FARMER

Columbus, Aug. 7.—Everett F. Rittenour, Pike County farmer, yesterday filed suit for injunction in federal court against the Norfolk & Western Railway, to prevent the railroad from removing a flag station located on his land.

Maintenance of the station was provided under the contract whereby the railroad obtained the land, he said. He asks that the flag station be retained or that the contract whereby the land is held by the railroad be declared void.

The first agreement was made between Henry W. Sargent and the Scioto Valley Railway Co., in 1877.

Conditions in Europe must be improving. M. Briand is said to be pleased with the German security note, and this is the first time the French and Germans have been able to please each other for a long time.

The time is passed when the measure of the value of a memorial is quantity. I hope the time has come when that measure is quality. I care not whether the material be marble or granite, its future will be measured by the character of the design. It is quality that has preserved for us the finest examples in painting and sculpture. It is quality that will stamp our imprint upon cemeteries of the future. Simplicity, correct lines and proportions and proper ornamentation are the real fundamentals. A design that is right, material that is lasting, and perfect workmanship, spells success for the future of this industry and the beautification of the cemetery. Will you let me help you select the memorial for your lot. Call at show room. NO AGENTS.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISELIQUOR DRIVE HAS BROUGHT TEN ARRESTS

Rum Chasers Fired at Rum
Runner, Pursued it 12 Miles
But Was Outdistanced.

Cleveland, O., Aug. 7. (UP).—Ten persons arrested in the renewed drive to stop the flow of liquor into the United States across Lake Erie were arraigned Friday.

Seven of those arrested were taken in Cleveland in four raids on soft drink parlors while the other three were seized in Lorain, Ohio, by federal agents. A number of additional arrests were expected Friday as a result of information already in the hands of federal authorities.

Roads between Cleveland and Toledo were being watched by a cordon of inspectors in an effort to trap bootleggers who elude coast guards and land Canadian liquor in northern Ohio.

A rum chaser Thursday fired several shots at a rum runner and pursued it for twelve miles into Canadian waters. The rum boat, equipped with high speed motors, outdistanced the pursuers, however, and escaped.

ANCIENT RELICS

While painting in the J. I. Smith block in West Main street this morning, in the attic Loring Kanode unearthed in the brick wall some relics of three-quarters of a century back. One was a memorandum book kept by the late F. M. Shulze, there were also cancelled promissory notes of the old Exchange bank of which Henry N. Hedges Jr., was cashier, of the date of 1862. Also shipping bills of the Cincinnati, Wilmington & Zanesville R. R., of 1862. The shipping rate at that time on goods assigned to Wolfley, Shulze and Co., was 47½ cents per hundred. This firm was located in the portion of the building occupied by Mader & Ebert, Funeral Directors. W. R. Stouch was agent of the C. W. & Z. R. R. at that time.

In the bunch was a Stoddard arithmetic published in 1847.

Overdoing It

"I've never had an accident," said the careful driver, "for the reason that I never drive faster than fifteen miles an hour."

"Never an accident?"
"Never an accident that I was responsible for. Of course I've been run into from behind several times."

SIMPLE HOMES IN CENTRAL AMERICA

Peons Satisfied With Primitive Abodes.

The peons' houses are made of poles. The poles are covered with a kind of palm leaf called Yaguas. These are laid like shingles on the roof and sides and tied with narrow strips of the same leaf, which when dampened is very flexible, enough so as to tie it into knots, but which upon drying will shrink tight against the poles. This makes a strong hut with water-tight roof and a good protection against the wind. There are generally two doors, back and front, but no windows.

The floor is in some instances made of the outside slabs cut from a palm tree, split out from four to six inches wide, the length being cut with a machete before the wood gets too dry. These slabs are held in place on the floor-poles by a few nails, and the upper side of the floor slabs is often brought to almost a piano polish by the constant rubbing of dirty clothes, grease and other things, for it is not the custom ever to wash the floor.

In many instances the entire family sleeps on the floor, with nothing to soften the hardness thereof and no covering, other than the clothes they wear during the day. The household tools, such as tables and chairs, in some instances, were not necessary, as the floor acted in the capacity for both.

The other things include a cast-iron kettle of 12-inch diameter by 5 inches deep, called caldero, in which the coffee beans are roasted. The roasted beans are then crushed by being pounded in a wooden mortar, called a mortero, which is made by hollowing out the end of a hardwood log some 15 inches in diameter by 3 feet high, to a depth of a foot, by the application of fire and then scraped to a smooth surface by a machete.

The pestle, called a majadera de mortero, is also of very hard wood, shaped by patiently chipping it into shape with a machete. The kettle referred to above is also used for making a stew, called sancocho. To this stew they add roots and leaves, to suit the taste. The boiling of green plantains called platanos is done in this very useful household tool; the platanos are used in place of our potatoes.

The man of the house always wears a machete, a sword-knife hung from some kind of belt around the waist (in countries where the laws do not forbid such weapons), and with this knife he cuts the cane, firewood, brush and grass and defends his family and himself from enemies. The edge of his machete is kept very keen, as it is his proudest possession, and some of the peons are experts in the use of it.

A very important item in the lives of these people is the tobacco they use for chewing, which is called tabaco hilado, pronounced by the native as if spelled tar-bark-o-elow. Both the men and women chew this. It is very strong; is made into ropes and sold by the vara—about 32 inches. I tried this tobacco once, and was perfectly satisfied that the kind made in the United States of America suited me much better.—By Mr. Emerson, Adventure Magazine.

Miners' Gas Deaths

Danger of mine deaths through smothering by poisonous gases is being reduced in the Illinois coal fields by equipping the workers with "self-rescuers," tested and approved by the federal bureau of mines. They are designed to give the wearer hours of air or more after the gas surrounds him before he is overcome, and consist of a pinch clamp for the nostrils attached to a small can with a mouth-piece. The device is worn in the pocket or on the belt and is inclosed in a sort of brass case that may be ripped open by hand. When the fumes arise, the breathing apparatus is quickly adjusted and, by inhaling and exhaling through the mouth into the can, the miner is protected from the poison for at least half an hour, and has a chance to seek escape.

Golf Ball Kills Crab

Many stories emanate from the various clubs about flying golf balls. Rabbits have been slain and numerous and sundry other unique incidents have been reported. The latest one is told by Dr. W. C. Melvin, Hamilton avenue dentist, who claims to have killed a lobster-sized crab with his white pill. Doctor Melvin says that he was driving from the eighth tee at Meadowbrook Country club when his ball hit something and stopped dead. He says he found that the ball hit a huge crab which had wandered onto the fairway from a nearby creek. And that's one more for the boys to shoot at.—Detroit News.

Home, Sweet Home

The approach of a storm, one not summer afternoon, was being eagerly watched by a mother and her children. Little Johnny manifested considerable fright.

"Maybe, children," said the mother, seeking to appease the little boy. "Jesus will come, give us wings, and take us all to heaven."

Her words seemed only to aggravate Johnny's fear and he began to cry.

"What is the matter, Johnny?" asked one of the older children. Between sobs, the little fellow answered: "I don't want to leave home, and I've no business with wings, besides."

CHINA AS A NATION HAS LONG HISTORY

Records Date Back More Than 100,000 Years.

The history of the Chinese is certainly interesting. At what period they first settled the country that they now occupy is not known with any certainty, but their traditions give them an antiquity of more than 100,000 years prior to their half-authentic history which goes back fifty-five centuries or more. So the Chinese were living in the valleys of the Hwang-ho and Yang-tze rivers long before the last extension of the polar caps.

At first they probably lived in caves along the river banks, spreading gradually along the banks of the tributaries and thus the people of the two rivers would have met and blended into one nation. Living on the rivers, the Chinese would have learned the art of navigation early, and large sailing canoes in all probability were cruising up and down the rivers and coasts of China and making voyages to Korea, and perhaps Japan, as early as 50,000 or 60,000 years ago. At that time many animals that are now extinct were living. Chinese history, though it dates back upward of 5,500 years, is not much to be depended upon till some ten centuries later, for like all ancient peoples, their early history is, of course, purely mythical.

Among the many discoveries and inventions of the Chinese might be mentioned the discovery of the seasons of the year, during the reign of the emperor (or hoang, as the Chinese called their ruler) Fuh-hi, who, it is said, also taught his people how to raise cattle, and writing and introduced marriage among them. Fuh-hi reigned about 4,800 years ago. He was succeeded by Shin-nung during whose reign medicine was first made and agricultural tools were improved. Before 2357 B. C. waterclocks, wheeled vehicles, improved weapons, musical instruments, and junks had been invented and polygamies and schools had been established. The Emperor Yau built roads and canals. The compass was invented in 1115 B. C. and engraving in 1000 B. C. and gunpowder, frepots, firecrackers, which they used extensively at celebrations, etc., and also in battle to frighten horses, etc., and repeating crossbows and printing, etc.

As is well known, the great wall of China is the greatest defensive work ever erected by man. It is probable that if the wall was lit up by powerful searchlights from one end to the other, the lights would be visible to the inhabitants of Mars, presuming, of course, that there are intelligent beings on that planet. The Chinese did not invent guns or cannon of any kind; cannon were invented by the Arabs in the Twelfth century, though a doubtful authority claims they were used at the siege of Belgrade in 1073 of the present era. The Mohammedans, however, used cannon in India in 1200 and Genghis Khan had artillery at the siege of Tsai-chew, China, and it is also said that he had cannon at the storming of Yenking, now Peking, China, in 1215, but this is doubtful. Though the Chinese did not invent either guns or cannon of any kind, they nevertheless were the first people to propel missiles with gunpowder, for during the reign of the Emperor Fui-tsu, in 969 of the present era, the Chinese attached rockets to their arrows, both to make them go farther and for incendiary purposes, so the idea of artillery, as well as the invention of gunpowder, is justly due to them.—Adventure Magazine.

Hair Dryer Starts Motors

During damp weather and after periods of idleness it was found difficult to start the motors of the seaplanes on the battleship Maryland. Somebody on board the vessel thought of a novel scheme to remedy this difficulty, according to a report by the vessel to the bureau of aeronautics. A hair dryer and a carbon lamp were used. The carbon lamp is secured alongside each magneto and is kept lighted while the plane is fastened to the catapult. When the plane is ready to be catapulted the hair dryer is used on the spark plugs and the exposed ends of ignition wires. It works fine, says the report.—Pathfinder Magazine.

The Critic's Pun

Frank Harris, the novelist and critic, spent the winter on the Riviera, and one day on the Promenade des Anglais in Nice a rich young poet accosted him.

The poet, who belongs to the new expressionist school—he has leanings besides toward diabolism, dadaism and dactylism—said with a smile of tremendous self-assurance.

"Ah, good morning, Mr. Harris. What did you think of the volume of poems I sent you last week?"

The critic laughed and answered in his melodious bass voice:

"So bad it couldn't be verse."

True Love

In speaking of the proposed revision of California's marriage laws and the community property bill, Governor Richardson remarked:

"In the old days, subjects like this did not exist. Those were the days of romance and these are the days of finance. In the old days, sweet sayings and sweetmeats used to count, but nowadays it's different."

"Are you sure he loves you?" Evelyn asked her friend.

"Of course I'm sure! Why, my dear, every time we're out in a taxi-cab he keeps his eyes on me all the time—never looks at the meter once!"

AUTOISTS ARE REMINDED OF FATALITIES

White Crosses Mark Places
Where Deaths Have Resulted
From Accidents.

White crosses are appearing on the roads in this county placed there to remind autoists of deaths that have occurred by accidents at the points so marked.

The first one on the Williamsport pike west of the Scioto river bridge is at the curve in the road near the Crites elevator, and is memory of Vernon Settler, who was drowned in a swollen stream when the auto in which he was riding with Nelson Walters, ran off the road into the stream, on June 20, 1921.

On the Chillicothe pike, between this city and Chillicothe, there are twelve white crosses. One of these is at Nash where a resident of Columbus was killed when his car skidded and turned turtle and the victim was crushed to death when the car upset.

CAMP PERRY

Prohibition Officers Maintain
Constant Vigil and Arrests are Imminent.

Toledo, O., Aug. 7, (UP).—Federal officials today began a sweeping investigation of alleged bootlegging within the gates of Camp Perry, Ohio. The inquiry follows the arrest of two men who were arraigned before a United States commissioner at Port Clinton and formally charged with violating the prohibition laws.

Officials said the men were driving a car at the camp entrance containing twenty gallons of liquor.

Prohibition enforcement officers have maintained constant vigil at the camp, officials declared and arrests are imminent.

The investigation was launched, it was announced, when two men told dry agents they could find all the liquor they wanted on the Camp Perry reservation.

AMUSEMENTS

A most unusual picture is offered now at the Met theater in "The Prairie Wife," a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer release, produced and directed by Hugo Ballin.

"The Prairie Wife," is a screen adaptation of the novel of Arthur Stringer, and tells an interesting story of the struggles and hardships of a cultured eastern girl who marries a young engineer and goes to live with him on his prairie homestead.

Chaddie had suddenly lost her wealth; her finance, the Honorable Theobald Gastav, is more attentive to a little Russian dancer than to her; and Duncan Trgyl, a lovable Scotchman, once more appears on the scene. She realizes she cannot marry a foreigner, tells Duncan she'll marry him, and their wedding trip is back to the Canadian northwest where Duncan is an engineer, and where she gets her first taste of hardship. But her love for her "Dinkie-Dunk" makes it possible for her to find happiness even without luxury and the arrival of Duncan Jr., brings the picture to a happy close.

Told with simplicity, feeling and a great deal of humor, "The Prairie Wife," is indeed something different in the way of pictures. It is told in a series of interesting incidents in the life of the young couple, rather than in a detailed plot.

Dorothy Devore, clever young comedienne, who has been starred in comedies for several years, steps out into drama with the leading role in this picture, and proves that her long training in lighter pictures has given her excellent background for dramatic work. She is an appealing, winsome young miss, with a feeling for drama as well as comedy.

Herbert Rawlinson provides excellent contrast to the delicate Miss Devore, as her virile husband and does his usual good work.

The supporting cast include Gibson Gowland, who was established as an actor of note in the leading role of Erich Von Stroheim's "Greed," Leslie Stuart Frances Prim Erich von Ritzau and others. The picture contains some exquisite photography by James Diamond.

OHIO'S WHEAT
CROP LOWEST

Survey Shows Production 44
per Cent Below Last Year
—Harvest Normal.

The wheat crop in Ohio this year is approximately 44 per cent below last year, 40 per cent below the five year average and the poorest crop in 13 years, according to figures recently compiled by Ralph F. Taber, rural economist at Ohio State university.

"Much wheat, particularly thru southwestern Ohio, was abandoned this spring, and in many other states wheat will not make a good crop," writes Mr. Taber in Fax, a monthly publication to the Ohio extension workers in the field.

"According to present prospects," he continues, "Ohio will produce 21, 416,000 bushels as compared with 37, 313,000 last year and a five year average of nearly 35 millions. This means we have the poorest crop in Ohio since 1912. Kansas, which is normally the heaviest winter wheat producing state, will have less than half a crop. Spring wheat will apparently be about normal.

"For the whole United States the present forecast is 680 million bushels, which is almost 200 million below last year and about 150 million below the average of the last five years. It is the poorest yield in the United States as a whole in 14 years.

"There is a possibility of some importation of certain grades of wheat and exportation will doubtless amount to not over 50 million bushels. Wheat is a world commodity, as farmers in the United States realized last year when shortage in Canada and the Argentine boosted our bumper crop here by 50 cents a bushel."

STATE FAIR
CATTLE SHOW
EDUCATIONAL

State University Joins With Live Stock Exchange in Interesting Display.

What kind of beef cattle should an Ohio farmer buy this fall to make the most money from the feed he has grown during the summer? Where can he buy with most profit? What is the best season for marketing? These questions are to be answered by beef cattle specialists from Chicago and Ohio State university at the State fair this fall.

The exhibit, which is to show 20 lots of feeder cattle, will be supplemented by market quotations from Chicago each day for each grade of cattle. J. E. Poole, who writes the market page for the Breeders Gazette and Paul Gerlaugh of the extension service at the university, will be on the grounds every day to explain the exhibit and answer questions.

The arrangement with the Chicago Livestock Exchange, which is to furnish the cattle, provides for the exhibition of these cattle in open pens near the cattle building on the State Fair grounds. Each lot will contain six head, five of which will be feeders and one in marketable condition.

The different lots will include two-year old steers of three grades, yearling steers of four grades, steer calves, cows, heifers, and heifer calves. In both the two year old and yearling lots there will be a lot each of fancy Herefords, Shorthorns and Angus.

According to Mr. Gerlaugh who has charge of the exhibit, this is the first time such an educational display has been made at the State fair.

Color-Blindness

Prof. H. E. Roaf has described a new method for the investigation of color-blindness. It consists in finding the wave length of light by which a color-match given by a color-blind person appears also to match for one of normal vision. It is evident when this has been found that the region of the spectrum in which the defect lies must also have been removed. The problem, therefore, is one of cutting off different regions of the spectrum and finding the wave-length limits of the smallest decrease in the spectrum for which the original and the comparison color match to a normal person. In 28 cases it was found that the defect is always in the red end of the spectrum.

FOOD FOR CHILDREN WHO TRAVEL

Many times, and especially during the summer months, mothers are forced to take their children on trips with them. During these trips, the parent is forced to contend with that ever-present and serious problem of food for the child.

As in almost every other case, the chief source of worry, during these periods, is the milk supply, its source, its purity and its food value. It is not always convenient to get market milk of dependable quality for, in many sections of the country, adequate facilities for its care are not provided. To meet the needs of mothers in these trying situations, science has provided a form of milk, conveniently carried and easily prepared. The cans are in two sizes, the one containing six ounces and the other sixteen.

Evaporated milk is just pure cows' milk with more than half of the water removed. None of its food value is lessened; in fact its digestibility is improved. It is easily mixed with water and is, undoubtedly, the most practical form of milk for use as a food for children. Some of the country's leading pediatricians recommend its use, employing the following formula:

From Sixth Week to Third Month.
Milk, evaporated 6 ounces
Lime water 3 ounces
Milk sugar 2 ounces
Boiled water 26 ounces
Seven feedings in twenty-four hours: 4 to 5 ounces at three-hour intervals during the day and four-hour intervals at night.

From Third Month to Fifth Month.
Milk, evaporated 7 1/2 ounces
Lime water 3 ounces
Milk sugar 2 ounces
Boiled water 29 1/2 ounces
Six feedings in twenty-four hours: 5 to 6 ounces at three-hour intervals during the day and a feeding at 10 p. m.

From Fifth to Seventh Month.
Milk, evaporated 10 ounces
Lime water 3 ounces
Milk sugar 2 ounces
Boiled water 29 ounces
Five feedings in twenty-four hours: 6 to 7 ounces at four-hour intervals during the day. Last feeding at ten at night.

From Seventh to Ninth Month.
Milk, evaporated 11 ounces
Lime water 3 ounces
Milk sugar 2 ounces
Boiled water 35 ounces
7 to 9 ounces at four-hour intervals during the day. Last feeding at ten at night.

From Ninth to Twelfth Month.
Milk, evaporated 12 ounces
Lime water 3 ounces
Milk sugar 2 ounces
Boiled water 34 ounces
8 to 9 ounces at four-hour intervals during day. Last feeding at ten at night.

4,000 WOMEN BURNED

YEARLY

DR. FREDERICK R. GREEN

Editor of "HEALTH"

BURNS kill more women than men. This is the only kind of an accident in which the mortality is greater among women than men. Figures covering a long period show that out of every five deaths from burns, three are deaths of women and girls. Burns stand forth among the causes of accidental deaths, being surpassed only by automobile accidents, falls and drownings.

In 1922 there were nearly 6,300 deaths from burns alone in the United States. Of these, about 45 per cent occurred in the first five years of life. At this age the mortality for male and female are about the same. This means that up to five years of age a boy is just as apt to be burned to death as a girl. After five years of age, however, more than twice as many girls die from burns.

Up to five years boys and girls are dressed much alike. After this age boys generally wear close-fitting woolen clothes which have no loose trimmings and are not liable to come in contact with fire.

But girls wear dresses of light cotton material. They are trimmed with laces and ribbons, which can easily come in contact with an open fire or an exposed gas jet. Women, too, often form the foolish and dangerous habit of lighting matches on the soles of their shoes, even when they are wearing long and flowing skirts. Matches carelessly dropped on the floor may easily set fire to a woman's skirt, but would do no damage to a man's close-fitting woolen trousers.

Whatever the explanation, the fact remains that every year nearly four thousand women and girls are burned to death.

Burns are classified by surgeons according to their effect on the skin. A burn of the first degree is one which reddens the skin; a second-degree burn is one in which the skin is blistered, while in a burn of the third degree the skin is burned and blackened throughout its entire thickness. The danger to life in a burn depends not so much on the depth of the burn as on the area covered. Even a first-degree burn is almost always fatal, if one-third or more of the skin of the body is covered.

In women and children whose clothes catch fire, death usually follows because the entire body is burned. Greater care and watchfulness will save six thousand lives every year now lost through carelessness.

World Has Little Use
for the Hobo Laborer

He is almost a memory, this old-time hobo laborer; he is gone because the need for him is gone. The industrial conquest of the country is accomplished; what remains to be done is extension, development, stabilization.

Industry no longer calls for pioneer labor, but for labor only. And the man who feels an urge to go away out there and help out on that big job has a hard time of it. Alaska, Canada, Mexico, the Argentine—yes, a man can strike out for those places. But there has been no excited talk in employment offices about work in foreign parts for a long time.

Panama is past, it has been a long time since the Canadian transcontinental roads were spiked, and the government railroad in Alaska—oh, lands, where'll we go? The Roman soldiers asked the same question, no doubt, when Rome conquered no longer, and so did adventurous sailors when the great days of the exploring navigators were done. And what became of Mark Twain's hordes of rivermen? Where are the snows of yesteryear?

Camp life still goes on, of course, in the woods, on construction work, and in the oil fields. But these camps are nowadays populated largely by laborers who support families, and who own cars, tailored clothes and bank accounts. The old-timers spin yarns of the happy days as they crouch around the bunkhouse stove, and they sometimes inspire a young laborer who has the soul of a roving adventurer. If he tries the box cars, he finds a dead life. If he journeys in an old flivver, he discovers something better, but not adventure.

The dance hall, the joy-ride, an occasional moonshine spree, poker and dice and the punchboards—these are the most spectacular elements in the life of the American laborer today. Its last raw, vivid colors went out with the hobo, and only the drama of sweat and effort is left. But this plain, simple drama has significance and merit, and, finally, the best words to be said for the hobo is that he was a hero in it.—James Stevens, in Century Magazine.

Pike's Peak Or—

The late Antonio de Novellis, the veteran musical director, who superintended the original American production of the "Mikado," has a very low opinion of jazz.

"The men who declare that jazz is a sign of progress in American music," Mr. De Novellis said one day in Flushing, "are as ignorant of music as the farmer was ignorant of photography."

"A farmer took his bride to a photographer's and said:

"We want the wife's picture took."

"Full length or bust?" the photographer asked.

"The farmer gave a hearty laugh and slapped the photographer on the back.

"All right; make it full length. Young feller," he said, "if she busts I'll pay for the machine."

Dollar Came Back

In 1878 a Confederate veteran named Doby left South Carolina for Tennessee with his family. His fortune went with them for a while, for their home burned down and members of the family became ill, so that when the only money in their possession was an inflated silver dollar they parted with it reluctantly. Mr. Doby goes on with the story: "Not a dollar has since fallen into my hands without my scrutinizing it to discover those initials. A few days ago a man called to me on the street and said, 'Here is the dollar I owe you.' As was my custom for 40 years, I looked for the initials, and to my great joy that dollar had the letters W. E. D. engraved on it."

Baseball in Argentina

Baseball has at last gained a place among Argentine sports, though as yet a small one. Two teams, composed of natives, have been organized, coached by Americans, one representing the Buenos Aires Y. M. C. A., the other the Gymnasium and Fencing club, the principal athletic club of Buenos Aires. Increasingly large numbers of spectators watch the games which they play with each other, with teams of American residents, and with one team of Japanese residents. They field and bat well, but have yet to develop pitchers able to fool their American or Japanese opponents often enough to win a game from them.

He'll Never Get In

William Milligan Sloane, the historian, is president of the American Academy of Arts and Letters, and in New York the other day a young novelist of the psycho-analytic or jazz school ridiculed the distinguished institution mercilessly. He said the French academy was no good, and the American academy was only an imitation of it.

When the jazz novelist got through Professor Sloane gave a good-natured laugh and said:

"Our American academy is like death. People only joke about it when they know there's no danger of its coming their way."

Helium Used as Starter

Helium, the non-combustible gas used in filling the lighter-than-air craft, has found another use. It has always been impossible on the Los Angeles to carry enough compressed air intact for the purpose of "kicking over" the engines in starting. Experiments conducted at Lakehurst, the naval air station, have developed the fact that this gas can be used successfully in starting the big motors of the craft.

Trainer of Boxers Gives Diet Hints

To Kid Howard of Chicago and his new system of training and conditioning, Sammy Mandell, the present lightweight boxing champion of the world, gives a great deal of the credit for his meteoric rise to stardom in the world of pugilism. When Mandell first started fighting, he was small, weak and undeveloped, but after turning himself over to Howard it was only a short time before he took the decision from Sid Terris of New York that resulted in him being recognized as the boss of the lightweights.

Howard's system is unique in that it works no hardship on the athlete who is in training. Unlike the systems that have been used for years, this prominent and successful trainer of men makes conditioning more of a pleasure than a distasteful necessity. Instead of demanding that his men eat only certain things he advises them to eat what they want and when they want it as long as it is cooked in a proper manner. Mr. Howard, in a recent interview on the subject of diet and conditioning, said, in part: "Years ago it was a task, and an unpleasant one, for a boxer or a wrestler to train for a bout because he was forced to literally starve himself unless he wanted to eat steaks and chops at all times. I remember that when I was training for a match, I was so truly tired of steaks that I choked every time that I ate one but it was steak or nothing. I advise my men to diet at all times but it is perfectly possible for them to diet and, at the same time, to enjoy their food. My only 'don't' is the one regarding the eating of such combinations as fresh milk and cheese, and fruit with cream. In fact, I advocate the use of evaporated milk entirely. Vegetables are fine and the more that the athlete eats the better he will be for it. Pastry, of certain kinds, such as homemade pies, cakes and cookies, if made correctly, and with pure butter, evaporated milk and pure lard, are very beneficial. Stews and bolls are ideal. Taken as a whole, any food, with a few exceptions, is all right if properly cooked and eaten without gorging."

And one has but to look at Howard, who is the most religious user of his own system, to realize that it is a success.

RINGWORM

DR. FREDERICK A. GREEN
Editor of "HEALTH"

EVERYBODY has seen a ringworm. Many persons have had one. It may happen to anyone; it may afflict any part of the body.

Several little red spots, scaly and elevated above the surface, appear on the skin. They spread from each red spot as a center, clearing up in the middle as they go, until they form a series of red rings, surrounding a patch of white skin. In from three or four days to two weeks after their first appearance the patches are from half an inch to an inch in diameter. The rings may then gradually disappear or may remain stationary, turning to a yellowish brown, or they may become inflamed and very painful.

These spots may be on the face, neck, hands and forearms, on the palms of the hands or the soles of the feet. Ringworm of the scalp causes the hair to fall out in circular patches. Ringworm of the face is popularly called barber's itch.

Ringworm, in any degree and on any part of the body, is due to a little fungus growing in the superficial layers of the skin. It is highly contagious. It may be taken by personal contact or by using toilet articles or clothes of infected persons. It is particularly common in schools and institutions such as orphan asylums, day nurseries and similar institutions where children come in close contact with each other. Barber shops, beauty parlors, hair-dressing establishments, laundries and public baths may spread this troublesome disease. It may also be carried by dogs, cats, rabbits, horses and cows.

Ringworm is a singularly stubborn affliction, and although it usually disappears in from several days to a few weeks, under proper treatment, it is very apt to return, either by a new infection or by some of the fungi being left alive in the skin. It is, of course, more stubborn and more difficult to control on the scalp and face. Here the hair or beard must be cut short or shaved in order to expose the skin.

The skin should be washed clean with hot water and green soap and one of a number of germicides applied. Painting the patches with tincture of iodine is excellent, if one does not mind the temporary disfigurement. For young children the iodine should be diluted with an equal amount of alcohol. Sulphur, salicylic or benzoic acid ointment may be used. Your doctor will tell you which one to use and how strong the ointment should be.

PORTSMOUTH

DEATH PENALTY

Lonzy Traylor, 21, Electrocuted
For Murder of Filling Station Man.

Columbus, Aug. 7.—Lonzy Traylor, 21, Portsmouth, was electrocuted at 1:06 a. m. today for killing Edward Funk, Sciotoville, filling station attendant, during a robbery Oct. 21, 1924. Traylor had confessed committing the crime, but made no statement this morning when brought into the death chamber.

The Emerick Co., Portsmouth undertakers, took the body to Portsmouth for funeral and burial.

Final pleas before the board of clemency failed to bring a recommendation of mercy. Jason Adkins, 33, Traylor's accomplice, was executed in May.

Traylor's wife, Mrs. Velma Traylor, Firebrick, Ky., did not visit her husband yesterday, the only ones coming to the death cell to pay last respects being his brother, Monroe Robinson, his sister, Mrs. Stella Jacobs, and a cousin, Lula Burchett.

His last supper, served at 5:30 p. m., consisted of chicken, creamed peas, sliced tomatoes, ice cream, cake, and a gallon of lemonade.

Cranberry Cultivation
Out of a total of 29,964 acres of cranberries in the United States, 14,000 are in Massachusetts and 13,000 in New Jersey. Cranberries are little grown outside of the United States. About 100 acres are being cultivated in Nova Scotia and they have been tried with little success in Norway, the Netherlands and Denmark.

ORDINANCE.
No. 530. An ordinance vacating that part of Hill Alley in Lawrence Ebert's Cedar Hill Addition to the City of Circleville, Ohio, that is a strip of land 16 1/2 feet in width and 208 feet in length and extends from the South line of Edison Avenue to the North line of Ebert Alley.
In Plat Book No. 2, of Pickaway County, Ohio, we have a complete plat and written description of this Addition.
Whereas, on said Plat and Addition Three Alleys are made and described to wit: Silver Alley, Pond Alley and Hill Alley. On said Plat said Lawrence Ebert makes the following statements to-wit: "I hereby accept the foregoing plat and description as laid out for me and do hereby dedicate the streets and alleys to public use forever, Lawrence Ebert, Proprietor of the above Addition."
And, whereas, Bertha K. Wood and J. M. Wood, her husband, are the owners of Lots Nos. 1592 to 1599 both inclusive, in the Addition in the immediate vicinity and adjoining and abutting the part of Hill Alley herein sought to be vacated and lands in said vicinity, have both signed a petition requesting the Council of the City of Circleville, Ohio, to vacate that part of Hill Alley as above described. Said Bertha K. Wood whose husband joins her releases his right of dower in said premises described in said petition, and
Whereas, she states in said petition as follows to-wit: "I, Bertha K. Wood being a petitioner herein, and being the present owner of Lots Nos. 1592 to 1599, both inclusive, which includes the real property abutting said part of said Alley, do hereby consent and require the vacation of the part of Hill Alley as above prayed for in this petition without notice of the pendency and prayer of said petition being published for six weeks as required by Section 3728 of the General Code and I hereby file with Council this my written consent and request that Council establish such vacation as prayed for but request that no such notice be required published and that Council proceed with this petition in pursuance of the exception to such notice as given in Section No. 3727 of the Ohio General Code. Signed, Bertha K. Wood, J. M. Wood her husband releasing his right of dower."
Now, therefore, we, the Council of the City of Circleville, Ohio, have listened to and have carefully considered said petition and three-fourths of the number elected or appointed to Council concurring, believe that if the part of Hill Alley is vacated as prayed for it will not be detrimental to the general interest and that there is good cause for granting said prayer and that it should be done. Now, therefore, be it ordained by the Council of the City of Circleville, Ohio, three-fourths of the number elected, or appointed thereto concurring:
Section 1. That the part of Lawrence Ebert's Cedar Hill Addition to the City of Circleville, Ohio, which consists of a strip of land 16 1/2 feet in width and 208 feet in length, and which extends from the South line of Edison Avenue to the North line of Ebert Alley, be, and the same is hereby vacated.
Section 2. That this ordinance shall take effect and be in force from and after the earliest period allowed by law.
Passed in Council this 3d day of June, 1925.
JOHN C. GOELLER, President.
Attest: Fred R. Nicholas, Clerk.
Approved by me this 3d day of June 1925.
GEO. M. FITZPATRICK, Mayor.

"Outlaws," the Jesse Jameses and the Robin Hoods of the horse world, the wildest and meanest animals of the equine species in the West, are now in the western corrals, ready for the battle to the finish with the best cowboys the ranges produce. These outlaws and their human rivals will engage in thrilling tests for supremacy at the big Chicago Roundup and World's Championship Rodeo, to be held in the Grant Park Stadium August 15 to 23, under the direction of Tex Austin.

In every outfit there is at least one cayuse that refuses to be tamed and broken for the saddle, no matter how many times they are roped, hogtied and ridden. They will take off into the air and go through every conceivable gyrations. They will sunfish, double-O, corkscrow, cake walk, high roll, pivot and twist until they succeed in tearing their rider loose, if it is possible to do so. There will be outlaw horses in the Chicago Roundup that never have been conquered. When such animals as Headlight, Teapot, King Tut, Satan, Overall Bill, Deerfoot and Sundown get into action in the Chicago Stadium there will be some fast and dizzy riding. That's when the big throngs will yell: "Ride 'im, Cowboy" and "Let 'er buck."

Leonard Stroud, noted buster, trick rider and lariat tosser, who has won fame at many of the local rodeos, has a string of the meanest bronchos in the world, which he is conditioning on his Colorado ranch for shipment to the Chicago Roundup. He says that each one of the horses he will bring will be equivalent to about 800 pounds of dynamite. Some of them, he predicts, never will be "ridden out" and "no cowboy ever will stick in the saddle till the horse is under subjection," he asserts.

RADIO TRANSMISSION OF MUSIC

TRANSMITTING music from the brain of a composer to radio listeners requires ten important steps, as are shown in the accompanying illustrations.
An opera—Lohengrin—is created in the brain of Wagner. When it is placed in musical symbols in score form. The third stage shows an orchestra in the Crosley WLW studio broadcasting it. From the studio, the music, in the form of electric current, travels through a microphone to an amplifying apparatus. After traveling via telephone wires from the amplifying room adjoining the studio, in Cincinnati, to the transmitting equipment, in Harrison, Ohio, about 25 miles away, it is sent into space in inaudible frequencies.
As radio waves, the music travels hundreds of miles and is picked up by the receiving antenna in the home of the radio listeners. It passes through the receiving set where it is transformed into audible frequencies and by means of a Musicon or headphones, is heard by the listeners. Thus does music, transmitted by radio, travel through ten stages from composer to listeners.

Columbus, O., Aug. 7 (UP). — A $170,000,000 utility merger involving a change in control of the Columbus Railway Power and Light company and other Ohio utilities, was reported in dispatches from New York Friday.

Other utilities included, the report said, were the American Light and Traction company, the Laclede Gas and Electric company and the Continental Gas and Electric company, also controlled by the United Light and Power company.

Vice president, C. C. Slater of the Columbus company, said he had heard nothing of the reported merger.

Cyrus S. Eaton, Cleveland, who engineered purchase of the controlling shares in the rail-light company, was said to be one of the main figures in the proposed consolidation.

CLEANUP OF TRAFFIC IN NARCOTICS

SIX ARE CAUGHT IN RAID IN COLUMBUS BY INSPECTORS

Thousands of Dollars Spent By Government In Finding Source of Supply Which was In Cleveland—Woman Insists on Having Her Bulldog Accompany Her to Jail, But It Was Taken From Her.

Disruption of an alleged dope ring operating out of Cleveland and thru-out Ohio and Michigan was accomplished Friday by Federal Narcotic Inspectors W. O. McDonald, J. B. Greeson and Kenneth Annis, working under direct supervision of Colonel L. G. Nutt, head of the U. S. narcotic division of the bureau of international revenue.

Smashing of the ring was started several months ago when the agents came to Columbus and began telegraphic negotiations with alleged members of the ring at Cleveland.

Results at Columbus were seen Friday night when Nutt and his inspectors arrested Elmer Emerich, 2333 1/2 East Main street; Louis C. McCudden, 503 West Town street and his wife, Mrs. Myrtle McCudden, and Mrs. Helen Unkrodt, 503 West Town street.

Negotiations by the agents with the Cleveland dope ring heads started after they had obtained the code used by the ring in sending telegraphic orders for narcotics, the inspectors said. The word "shoes" referred to an ounce of morphine, the word, "chocolate," to a similar quantity of cocaine "milk" and "candy" were used as substitute words occasionally in telegrams, Colonel Nutt said.

David H. Ginby, Murphy hotel, Cleveland, was arrested Thursday, under the name of Joseph Lewis, his arrest being the initial one of the series that resulted in the disruption of the ring, according to Colonel Nutt.

He was arrested after he arrived in Columbus with two and one-half ounces of morphine in response to a telegram from McDonald, who had ordered similar shipments from him on previous occasions, the inspectors charged. Thru letters and telegrams found on his person, the officers learned that Harry Goldman, Cleveland, was one of the chief operatives of the ring, the officers said.

Returning to Cleveland they found Goldman and as they were arresting him six of Goldman's accomplices appeared and sought to wrest him from custody. McDonald and Greeson said they fought off the attack, and maintained possession of Goldman, but were unable to take any of the others into custody.

Immediately after Goldman's arrest of the officers said they searched his room at the hotel and found information as to the other ring members there. Acting on this information they went to the Emerich home in West Broad street, where the inspectors say they bought a quantity of cocaine.

McDonald and Greeson next went to Wheeler's home, where they again made a "buy" and seized a quantity of narcotics as evidence they reported.

The final raid of the night was at the McCudden home where they said they seized $75 worth of morphine and a hypodermic needle. Mrs. Unkrodt insisted on having her bulldog accompany her to jail, but it was taken from her at the city prison after a skirmish between her and the prison matron.

McDonald and Greeson said the discovery and disruption of the ring was accomplished only after thousands of dollars had been spent by the government in finding the source of the dope supply in Ohio and neighboring states.

While city and state officers have been arresting many of the minor dope peddlers thruout the state, the real source of supply at Cleveland remained undisturbed and contained its workings until the agents established themselves as actual dope buyers they declared Friday night.

WINDSHIELD WAS BROKEN BY WILD SHOT

Raymond Hill's Foot was Cut by Shattered Glass on North Court Street.

As Harry Hill and his seven-year old son, Raymond, were returning from Columbus Friday morning in an auto and just as their car passed the cemetery, a bullet shot from a distance, hit and passed thru the windshield of the car, barely missing his son's head.

The boy was barefooted and pieces of the shattered glass fell on his right foot cutting an artery in his instep. The wounded boy was taken to Dr. D. V. Courtwright's office where the wound was dressed.

Mr. Hill notified the police department and search was made for the fellow with a gun but he could not be found. It is presumed that the gun toter was firing at squirrels in the cemetery and the shot went wild.

SOCIAL CALENDAR

Mr. and Mrs. John G. Green, of 84 West Fourth avenue, Columbus, entertained to dinner last Tuesday, August 4, in honor of the 42d birthday anniversary of Mrs. Green's sister, Mrs. T. L. Pontius. The house was decorated beautifully in gladioli, nasturtiums and sanpdragons. In the center of the table was a large birthday cake with 42 candles. The occasion was a surprise to the honoree and the guests were the immediate families.

OLDEST PRESIDING JUDGE.

W. H. Palm, of East Main street, is probably the oldest presiding judge in the state in point of service. He has served twenty-one years in his precinct, the Second ward, and most of that time as presiding judge.

FRANK P. BERGER

Franklin P. Berger died at his home, 619 North Court street, Saturday morning at five o'clock. The deceased was born in Walnut township, December 16, 1852. He was the son of Henry and Margaret Lutz Berger, natives of Berks county, Pennsylvania. His parents were pioneer residents of this county.

The deceased had been ill for the past six months and his death was due to organic heart trouble. Mr. Berger was a farmer by occupation but he retired a number of years ago and moved to his residence on North Court street.

He married Miss Sarah J. Pontius October 25, 1881. He was a member of the Evangelical Lutheran church at East Ringgold and socially he was a member of the Elks lodge, of this city.

He is survived by his wife. Of his immediate family two sisters are living. They are Mrs. Sarah J. Groce, of East Ringgold and Mrs. Mary J. Snyder, of this city.

The funeral services will be held at his late home at two o'clock Tuesday afternoon, August 11. Rev. R. V. Smith, of Columbus, will officiate.

Mrs. Boyd Trout, Mrs. Carlisle Moffitt, of Columbus; Fred Wittich and Eli Roper will sing "In the Garden Alone;" "Sometime We'll Understand" and "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere."

The remains will be placed in the Berger mausoleum at Reber Hill cemetery. The pallbearers will be Nelson Warner, Jerome Warner, Irvin F. Snyder, Walker Baughman, George Forest and Dr. A. W. Holman.

WHAT'S THE MATTER WITH CIRCLEVILLE?

The memorial to those soldiers of the Five Points vicinity erected in that village in 1919, puts the blush of shame on the County Seat, which hasn't accomplished anything in that line as yet for the boys of the World's War, who were killed in action or have since died.

Mrs. G. A. Garrett and son, Ralph Emery, went to Ft. Wayne, Indiana, to visit Mrs. Samuel Wetzler.

PRIMARY ELECTION.

The primary election will be held in this city Tuesday, August 11. The only contest on the ticket is for the office of city treasurer, and all are Simon pure Democrats. It seems that no Republican cared for the honor enough to run for the job.

The four candidates for this position are W. C. Morris, Christy Voll, Lawrence J. Johnson and George W. Myers.

MILLIONS FOR MAINTENANCE OF OUR ROADS

There are 85,000 Miles of Roads in Ohio and 12,000 Miles of City Streets.

Ohio will spend close to $11,000,000 this year in the upkeep of the 10,000 miles of inter-county highways designated as state routes. Of this amount slightly over $1,000,000 will be derived from county funds. The rest will come from state funds.

In addition to the $11,000,000 for maintenance $12,400,000 is to be spent in new highway construction thru the combined efforts of federal, state and county governments.

This combined maintenance and construction cost, totaling $23,400,000 does not represent the total expenditure of Ohio highways for the year, for it does not take into account tens of thousands of dollars spent by counties and townships in the upkeep of roads of lesser importance. Neither does it take into account the expenditures of cities in paving and maintaining their streets, many of which are used by thru traffic.

There are 85,000 miles of public roads in Ohio outside of municipalities and 12,000 miles of streets in Ohio cities. Out of the total thoroughfare mileage of 97,000 miles in the state 10,000 miles comprise the inter-county highway system, 6,000 miles of which are kept up by the state.

When the budget was made up for the maintenance and repair of state highways, the availability of gas tax funds was not yet assured, so the budget was based on funds outside the revenue from the new 2 cent tax on fuel.

Gas tax money has begun to come into the state treasury so that at present there is available $1,700,000 more for maintenance and repair of highways than the budget estimate took into account. The gas tax revenue will be used in various places over the state as it is needed at points not already provided for in the budget. H. J. Kirk, chief engineer of the bureau of maintenance and repairs, said Friday. In 1926 Kirk estimates there will be still more money available.

Ohio is enabled to spend nearly twice as much for the maintenance of state routes in 1925 as it was in 1921 and more than $4,000,000 more than it was able to spend in 1924.

The increased expense is entirely necessary Kirk says, because the state now is confronted with the proposition of building roads constructed years ago, and now worn out or inadequate for present day traffic. Assuming a life of 20 years for approximately 6000 miles now under state maintenance, we should be rebuilding one-twentieth of 6000, or 300 miles per year," says the division chief. "If we don't build them as fast as they wear out, it becomes necessary to carry on uneconomical patching. We have roads that in 1924 required $3000 per mile for patching. They should have been rebuilt, but the funds were not available."

NEW HOLLAND FIELD DAY.

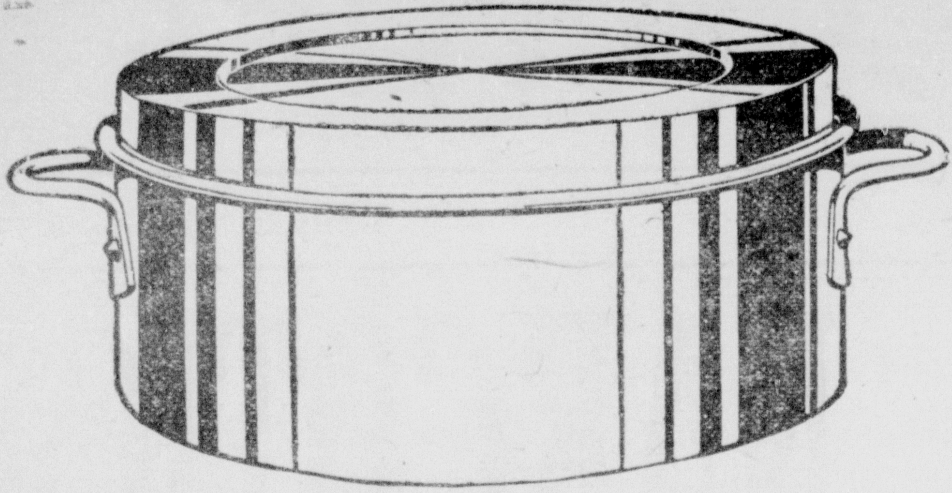

The second annual field day was held at New Holland Thursday. A fish dinner was served by the Men's Bible class of the Church of Christ assisted by the ladies of the church.

Two baseball games were scheduled and played, the first between the New Holland Giants and The Boys' band, which resulted in the score of 3 to 1 in favor of the Giants. The second game between the Giants and the Tigers of Chillicothe, the score was 7 to 5 in favor of the Giants.

The Boys' Industrial School band of Lancaster furnished the music.

James Davidson, George W. Dresbach, Irvin Reid and Louis Holderman leave this evening for a trip to Buffalo, New York and Niagara Falls.

A System of Farming That Brings Health and Prosperity

Every farm, regardless of the method of farming practiced or of the crops raised, should have at least a few good milch cows to provide

- (1) Enough milk, cream and butter for home use;
- (2) Enough skim-milk to raise some calves, pigs and chickens;
- (3) Enough cream or butter to sell to pay, in part or entirely, current living expenses.

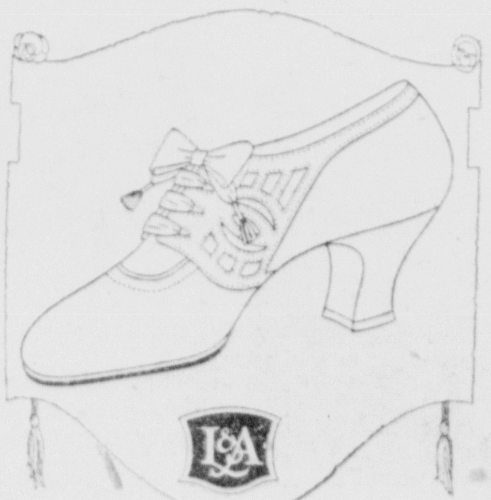

This plan has been a "life-saver" for thousands of farmers, especially during the hard times of the past two years. It insures a living, at least, and often other income besides.

Such a plan pays best with a De Laval Cream Separator. It soon pays for itself—and skims cleaner, lasts longer and is easier to operate and clean than any other.

The Surest System Yet

When you hear a story from the man in the street and shortly thereafter go to a vaudeville theater and hear a performer on the stage repeat it, you may know by this sign that it has undoubted merits. It is an evidence of distinction on the part of the story.

Here lately, a popular yarn of other days has been enjoying a theatrical revival. The story has to do with a man describing a poker game which he was invited to join while visiting in a strange town.

"The first hand that was dealt," he says, "I had three. I opened the pot and one other man stayed. He drew one card. We bet back and forth for a while and finally he called. 'I've got three of a kind,' I said, and showed down my three nines. 'I've got a straight—ten high,' he says, and pitches his hand in the deck and reaches for the chips. 'Hold on,' I says, 'I didn't see what you had.' He looks at me sort of surprised and the fellow who's givin' the party speaks up and says to me: 'This is a gentleman's game. If a man wins a pot here we never ask him to show his hand. We just take his word for it that he holds the winning cards and we let it go at that. That's our rule.'"

"Did you keep on playing after that?" asks a bystander.

"Certainly I did," says the first speaker.

"And did you win?"

"Did I win?" Huh—the first pot was the only one I lost!"

No Place for an Outsider

I used to know a New York business man who delighted to tell a yarn of his boyhood. He said that when he was about sixteen years old his father, who was a presiding elder of the M. E. church, took him from his home in Pennsylvania to a town out in Ohio where the son was to be entered in a small college.

"When we got off the train," said my friend, "the whole town seemed to be in a battle. It was a coal-mining district, and two groups of husky miners with fists and clubs were doing their level best to destroy each other. There were 20 fights going on at once! The town marshal was in a doorway looking on calmly. 'I rather enjoyed the sight; but my father as a minister of the gospel was naturally very much shocked. Holding me by the hand, he made for the place where the town marshal stood. 'What does this outrage mean?' the old gentleman demanded."

"This is pay day by the mines," explained the marshal in a strong Teutonic accent, "and every pay day this happens—the Irish miners they fights mit the Welsh miners."

"But why don't you stop it?" asked my father.

"For why should I interfere?" said the marshal simply. "I'm German!"

Narrowing Down to the Facts

There were two brothers; a truthful brother and a brother who was the most incorrigible and persistent liar in the county. As a result of the latter's chronic embellishments of facts the whole family was getting a bad reputation.

The truthful brother took him in hand.

"Look here, Bill," he said, "you're disgracing the name. This thing has got to stop. The next time you start in to exaggerate just keep your eye on me. When you begin to go too far I'll give you a hard look and that'll be a signal to you to begin soft-pedaling."

The very next day the two brothers were in the company of a group of their fellow citizens. The talk drifted to the subject of big city hotels. This was a cue for the liar.

"Speakin' of hotels," he said, "I know a hotel out in California that is twenty-two stories high, has a thousand rooms in it, eight dining-rooms, fourteen bowling alleys, twenty-two swimming pools, thirty soda-water fountains, forty-eight billiard halls and—" here he caught a hard look from the good brother—"and is three feet and a half wide."

The Current Rate on Suckers

The late Tom Williams dropped into a gambling house in Reno, Nev., one night, and, playing roulette, speedily dropped his roll, but not before he had made up his mind that the game was crooked.

On his way down stairs in deep disgust he met the proprietor, Long Brown.

"What kind of a dump is this you're running?" demanded Williams. "I've just been skinned out of four hundred dollars."

"Who brought you in here?" said Brown.

"I brought myself in," said Williams.

"Oh, if that's the case," said Brown, "I owe you eighty dollars."

"How come?"

"Well, you see, I pay twenty per cent apiece for all suckers that are steered in. You appear to have steered yourself in. Here's your eighty."

THE AMERICAN LEGION

(Copy for This Department Supplied by the American Legion News Service.)

RADIO FUND IS IN HANDS OF LEGION

Administration of the Roxy-Sun radio fund for disabled veterans of the World War is now in the hands of the American Legion. It was announced at national headquarters of the Legion at Indianapolis. The fund was recently transferred to the Legion by Maurice Judd, representing the New York Sun. It amounts to something over $80,000.

The fund is used to provide radio sets for hospitalized veterans in all parts of the United States. It will, it is hoped, be the nucleus for a permanent endowment, which eventually will make a set available to every veteran in a hospital.

The fund was started by S. L. Rothman, known to radio fans as "Roxy," of broadcasting fame. While attending a radio show at Washington, D. C., in May, 1924, Mr. Rothman visited veterans at Walter Reed hospital. He saw an opportunity to bring happiness to them by means of the radio. He enlisted the interest of Mr. Judd in the project.

Returning to New York, Mr. Rothman interested the Sun in the plan. A fund was started. Other newspapers joined in. Nearly $200,000 was raised. Nearly $125,000 was expended in purchasing equipment. It was finally decided to turn the fund over for further administration to the Legion. A check for the amount was presented to National Adjutant Russell Creviston of the Legion recently.

The fund will be administered through a board of trustees. National Commander James A. Drain of the Legion and National Treasurer Robert H. Tyndall are members of the board. Capt. John H. Craig, aide to the commandant of the United States marine corps, who has taken a very active interest in the fund, is a member. John Oliver Lagorce, editor of the National Geographic Magazine, and the Munsey Trust company of Washington are included.

Robert F. Smith, managing editor of the American Legion Weekly, and Marquis James of the staff of the Weekly are members of the board. The American Legion Weekly will have a large part in the active control and management of the fund.

DIVA AIDS FUND

"MOTHER" ERNESTINE SCHUMANN-HEINK, world-famous opera singer, has raised her voice in behalf of the American Legion's $5,000,000 endowment fund for the disabled veterans and orphans of the world war. Schumann-Heink is the mother of four sons who served with the American army in the World War and of another son who went down with his U-boat in a German uniform.

While on tour at Philadelphia the great World War mother made a contribution of $500 to the fund.

"I love America," she said, while writing her $500 contribution. "America took me into its arms and gave me everything. I was poor when I came. America was good to me—so good to me. When the war broke out I saw my duty, my opportunity to pay back a little for the goodness America had been to me."

He Cussed King Albert and Got Medal for It

Henry Himpe's comrades in the American Legion at Omaha, Neb., refer to him as "the only man who cussed a king and got a medal for it."

During the fighting in the trenches in the early days of the war, some one tugged at Himpe's shoulder. Not knowing who his mud-bespattered companion was, Himpe peremptorily told him to "get the h—l out of here or I'll shoot you." It was King Albert of Belgium.

A few days later Himpe was called to headquarters and reprimanded for not being more polite to his comrades. That was the first he knew that the man he threatened to shoot was his own king.

King Al later came to look on the incident as a joke and after the war introduced Himpe to the court as "the man who threatened to kill me."

Himpe recently received notice that he was awarded the Belgian war cross with one palm. He is a chauffeur at Omaha.

Idaho City Beautiful

That Idaho Falls, Idaho, may warrant the title "The City Beautiful" the local American Legion post recently offered prizes to boys and girls who make the prettiest and best gardens. The mayor and council have agreed to donate $50 toward the prizes and to furnish the water for irrigating vacant lots which are to be planted to grass and flowers by the city's young gardeners.

SAFETY RULES IN ELECTRIC STORMS

Student of Lightning Says, "First Get Under Cover."

Milton, Mass.—About this season, as the old almanacs used to say, expect thunder storms. Inevitably they bring danger to human life, but the hazard can be diminished considerably if the advice of men who have made a thorough study of the electrical discharges of the atmosphere is followed.

One of these experts is Alexander G. MacAdie, director of the Blue Hill observatory and professor of meteorology at Harvard university. In the little building on the wind-swept summit of Blue hill, the highest point in eastern Massachusetts and in the midst of the Blue Hill forest reservation, he has spent many years in watching and analyzing the action of the elements.

Studies Thunder Storms.

He has made a special study of thunder storms and some time ago he formulated a set of suggestions to help people take care of themselves during such disturbances. Since that time, he says experience has borne out the value of these suggestions and science has not developed any new means of safeguarding a person against lightning discharges.

Get under cover, is his first rule. If you can't do that, lie down. About ten lightning flashes in a hundred come down to earth in a straight line, and the person who stands out in the open when such flashes are seen, invites trouble. But getting under cover doesn't mean seeking shelter beneath a tree because that will bring you in the direct line of discharge, and Professor MacAdie says more people are killed by lightning in this way than probably any other.

Cut Out Radio.

The doorway of a barn or a window near a chimney also are dangerous places to stand, because lightning follows to some extent any draft of air, especially warm air. When the flashes are heavy or numerous, keep away from chimneys, trees, flagpoles or metal clotheslines, and cut out your radio.

You are safer indoors than out. The probability of a person in an ordinary residence building being struck, says Professor MacAdie, is very slight, and dwelling houses in city blocks are virtually safe. He defends the lightning rod, once so popular, but now largely fallen into disuse, asserting that if a house is provided with good lightning rods there is little to fear.

INSURES HER NOSE

Mexico City Crimes Average 102 Per Day

Mexico City.—Barred from police headquarters because, they assert, their papers published the truth about crime in the capital in April and May, police reporters on the leading papers have devoted their efforts to outside investigation.

As a result, they claim to have proofs that, during the early days of May, the crime average reached 102 cases daily.

Investigation of records at the prosecuting attorney's office has disclosed, according to El Universal, that 30,000 cases are consigned annually to the penal courts. During the first trimester of 1924, it is stated, there were 2,267 cases of assault, resulting in injury, and 1,272 of robbery.

Statistics secured at the federal district penitentiary and the Belen and municipal jails, the same paper asserts, show that 70,914 persons were either detained or imprisoned in these institutions during 1924.

Ninety-five per cent of those held for infractions of the penal and civil codes, it is declared, go unpunished.

FLAG STATION REMOVAL SOUGHT BY FARMER

Columbus, Aug. 7.—Everett F. Rittenour, Pike County farmer, yesterday filed suit for injunction in federal court against the Norfolk & Western Railway, to prevent the railroad from removing a flag station located on his land.

Maintenance of the station was provided under the contract whereby the railroad obtained the land, he said. He asks that the flag station be retained or that the contract whereby the land is held by the railroad be declared void.

The first agreement was made between Henry W. Sargent and the Scioto Valley Railway Co., in 1877.

Conditions in Europe must be improving, M. Briand is said to be pleased with the German security note, and this is the first time the French and Germans have been able to please each other for a long time.

The time is passed when the measure of the value of a memorial is quantity. I hope the time has come when that measure is quality. I care not whether the material be marble or granite, its future will be measured by the character of the design. It is quality that has preserved for us the finest examples in painting and sculpture. It is quality that will stamp our imprint upon cemeteries of the future. Simplicity, correct lines and proportions and proper ornamentation are the real fundamentals. A design that is right, material that is lasting, and perfect workmanship, spells success for the future of this industry and the beautification of the cemetery. Will you let me help you select the memorial for your lot. Call at show room. NO AGENTS.

LIQUOR DRIVE HAS BROUGHT TEN ARRESTS

Rum Chasers Fired at Rum Runner, Pursued it 12 Miles But Was Outdistanced.

Cleveland, O., Aug. 7. (UP).—Ten persons arrested in the renewed effort to stop the flow of liquor into the United States across Lake Erie were arraigned Friday.

Seven of those arrested were taken in Cleveland in four raids on soft drink parlors while the other three were seized in Lorain, Ohio, by federal agents. A number of additional arrests were expected Friday as a result of information already in the hands of federal authorities.

Roads between Cleveland and Toledo were being watched by a cordon of inspectors in an effort to trap bootleggers who elude coast guards and land Canadian liquor in northern Ohio.

A rum chaser Thursday fired several shots at a rum runner and pursued it for twelve miles into Canadian waters. The rum boat, equipped with high speed motors, outdistanced the pursuers, however, and escaped.

ANCIENT RELICS

While painting in the J. I. Smith block in West Main street this morning, in the attic Loring Kanode unearthed in the brick wall some relics of three-quarters of a century back. One was a memorandum book kept by the late F. M. Shulze, there were also cancelled promissory notes of the old Exchange bank of which Henry N. Hedges Jr., was cashier, of the date of 1862. Also shipping bills of the Cincinnati, Wilmington & Zanesville R. R., of 1862. The shipping rate at that time on goods assigned to Wolfley, Shulze and Co., was 47½ cents per hundred. This firm was located in the portion of the building occupied by Mader & Ebert, Funeral Directors. W. R. Stouch was agent of the C. W. & Z. R. R. at that time.

In the bunch was a Stoddard arithmetic published in 1847.

Overdoing It

"I've never had an accident," said the careful driver, "for the reason that I never drive faster than fifteen miles an hour."

"Never an accident?"

"Never an accident that I was responsible for. Of course I've been run into from behind several times."

SIMPLE HOMES IN CENTRAL AMERICA

Peons Satisfied With Primitive Abodes.

The peons' houses are made of poles. The poles are covered with a kind of palm leaf called Yaguas. These are laid like shingles on the roof and sides and tied with narrow strips of the same leaf, which when dampened is very flexible, enough so as to tie it into knots, but which upon drying will shrink enough to draw the big leaves tight against the poles. This makes a strong hut with water-tight roof and a good protection against the wind. There are generally two doors, back and front, but no windows.

The floor is in some instances made of the outside slabs cut from a palm tree, split out from four to six inches wide, the length being cut with a machete before the wood gets too dry. These slabs are held in place on the floor-poles by a few nails, and the upper side of the floor slabs is often brought to almost a piano polish by the constant rubbing of dirty clothes, grease and other things, for it is not the custom ever to wash the floor.

In many instances the entire family sleeps on the floor, with nothing to soften the hardness thereof and no covering, other than the clothes they wear during the day. The household tools, such as tables and chairs, in some instances, were not necessary, as the floor acted in the capacity for both.

The other things include a cast-iron kettle of 12-inch diameter by 5 inches deep, called caldero, in which the coffee beans are roasted. The roasted beans are then crushed by being pounded in a wooden mortar, called a mortero, which is made by hollowing out the end of a hardwood log some 15 inches in diameter by 3 feet high, to a depth of a foot, by the application of fire and then scraped to a smooth surface by a machete.

The pestle, called a majadera de mortero, is also of very hard wood, shaped by patiently chipping it into shape with a machete. The kettle referred to above is also used for making a stew, called sancocho. To this stew they add roots and leaves, to suit the taste. The boiling of green plantains called plantanos is done in this very useful household tool; the plantanos are used in place of our potatoes.

The man of the house always wears a machete, a sword-knife hung from some kind of belt around the waist (in countries where the laws do not forbid such weapons), and with this knife he cuts the cane, firewood, brush and grass and defends his family and himself from enemies. The edge of his machete is kept very keen, as it is his proudest possession, and some of the peons are experts in the use of it.

A very important item in the lives of these people is the tobacco they use for chewing, which is called tobacco hlado, pronounced by the native as if spelled tar-bar-ko-e-low. Both the men and women chew this. It is very strong; is made into ropes and sold by the vara—about 32 inches. I tried this tobacco once, and was perfectly satisfied that the kind made in the United States of America suited me much better.—By Mr. Emerson, Adventure Magazine.

Miners' Gas Masks

Danger of mine deaths through smothering by poisonous gases is being reduced in the Illinois coal fields by equipping the miners with "self-rescuers," tested and approved by the federal bureau of mines. They are designed to give the wearer half an hour or more after the gas surrounds him before he is overcome, and consist of a pinch clamp for the nostrils attached to a small can with a mouth-piece. The device is worn in the pocket or on the belt and is inclosed in a sort of brass case that may be ripped open by hand. When the fumes arise, the breathing apparatus is quickly adjusted and, by inhaling and exhaling through the mouth into the can, the miner is protected from the poison for at least half an hour, and has a chance to seek escape.

Golf Ball Kills Crab

Many stories emanate from the various clubs about Detroit. Birds have been killed by flying golf balls, rabbits have been slain and numerous and sundry other unique incidents have been reported. The latest one is told by Dr. W. C. Melvin, Hamilton avenue dentist, who claims to have killed a lobster-sized crab with his white pill. Doctor Melvin says that he was driving from the eighth tee at Meadowbrook Country club when his ball hit something and stopped dead. He says he found that the ball hit a huge crab which had wandered onto the fairway from a nearby creek. And that's one more for the boys to shoot at.—Detroit News.

Home, Sweet Home

The approach of a storm, one not summer afternoon, was being eagerly watched by a mother and her children. Little Johnny manifested considerable fright.

"Maybe, children," said the mother, seeking to appease the little boy, "Jesus will come, give us wings, and take us all to heaven."

Her words seemed only to aggravate Johnny's fear and he began to cry.

"What is the matter, Johnny?" asked one of the older children.

"Between sobs, the little fellow answered: 'I don't want to leave home, and I've no business with wings, besides.'"

CHINA AS A NATION HAS LONG HISTORY

Records Date Back More Than 100,000 Years.

The history of the Chinese is certainly interesting. At what period they first settled the country that they now occupy is not known with any certainty, but their traditions give them an antiquity of more than 100,000 years prior to their half-authentic history which goes back fifty-five centuries or more. So the Chinese were living in the valleys of the Hwang-ho and Yang-tze rivers long before the last extension of the polar caps.

At first they probably lived in caves along the river banks, spreading gradually along the banks of the tributaries and thus the people of the two rivers would have met and blended into one nation. Living on the rivers, the Chinese would have learned the art of navigation early, and large sailing canoes in all probability were cruising up and down the rivers and coasts of China and making voyages to Korea, and perhaps Japan, as early as 50,000 or 60,000 years ago. At that time many animals that are now extinct were living. Chinese history, though it dates back upward of 5,500 years, is not much to be depended upon till some ten centuries later, for like all ancient peoples, their early history is, of course, purely mythical.

Among the many discoveries and inventions of the Chinese might be mentioned the discovery of the seasons of the year, during the reign of the emperor (or hoang, as the Chinese called their ruler) Fuh-hi, who, it is said, also taught his people how to raise cattle, and writing and introduced marriage among them. Fuh-hi reigned about 4,500 years ago. He was succeeded by Shin-nung during whose reign medicine was first made and agricultural tools were improved. Before 2357 B. C. waterclocks, wheeled vehicles, improved weapons, musical instruments, and junks had been invented and polygamy and schools had been established. The Emperor Yau built roads and canals. The compass was invented in 1115 B. C. and engraving in 1000 B. C. and gunpowder, firecrackers, which they used extensively at celebrations, etc., and also in battle to frighten horses, etc., and repeating crossbows and printing, etc.

As is well known, the great wall of China is the greatest defensive work ever erected by man. It is probable that if the wall was lit up by powerful searchlights from one end to the other, the lights would be visible to the inhabitants of Mars, presuming, of course, that there are intelligent beings on that planet. The Chinese did not invent guns or cannon of any kind; cannon were invented by the Arabs in the Twelfth century, though a doubtful authority claims they were used at the siege of Belgrade in 1073 of the present era. The Mohammedans, however, used cannon in India in 1200 and Genghis Khan had artillery at the siege of Tsai-chew, China, and it is also said that he had cannon at the storming of Yenking, now Peking, China, in 1215, but this is doubtful. Though the Chinese did not invent either guns or cannon of any kind, they nevertheless were the first people to propel missiles with gunpowder, for during the reign of the Emperor Fuh-tsu, in 969 of the present era, the Chinese attached rockets to their arrows, both to make them go farther and for incendiary purposes, so the idea of artillery, as well as the invention of gunpowder, is justly due to them.—Adventure Magazine.

Hair Dryer Starts Motors

During damp weather and after periods of idleness it was found difficult to start the motors of the seaplanes on the battleship Maryland. Somebody on board the vessel thought of a novel scheme to remedy this difficulty, according to a report by the vessel to the bureau of aeronautics. A hair dryer and a carbon lamp were used. The carbon lamp is secured alongside each magneto and is kept lighted while the plane is fastened to the catapult. When the plane is ready to be flown the hair dryer is used on the spark plugs and the exposed ends of ignition wires. It works fine, says the report.—Pathfinder Magazine.

The Critic's Pun

Frank Harris, the novelist and critic, spent the winter on the Riviera, and one day on the Promenade des Anglais in Nice a rich young poet accosted him.

The poet, who belongs to the new expressionist school—he has leanings besides toward diabolism, dadaism and dordism—said with a smile of tremendous self-assurance.

"Ah, good morning, Mr. Harris. What did you think of the volume of poems I sent you last week?"

The critic laughed and answered in his melodious bass voice:

"So bad it couldn't be verse."

True Love

In speaking of the proposed revision of California's marriage laws and the community property bill, Governor Richardson remarked:

"In the old days, subjects like this did not exist. Those were the days of romance and these are the days of finance. In the old days, sweet sayings and sweetmeats used to count, but nowadays it's different."

"Are you sure he loves you?" Evelyn asked her friend.

"Of course I'm sure!—Why, my dear, every time we're out in a taxicab he keeps his eyes on me all the time—never looks at the meter once."

AUTOISTS ARE REMINDED OF FATALITIES

White Crosses Mark Places Where Deaths Have Resulted From Accidents.

White crosses are appearing on the roads in this county placed there to remind autoists of deaths that have occurred by accidents at the points so marked.

The first one on the Williamsport pike west of the Scioto river bridge is at the curve in the road near the Vernon Elevator, and is memory of Crites Lettler, who was drowned in a swollen stream when the auto in which he was riding with Nelson Walters, ran off the road into the stream, on June 20, 1921.

On the Chillicothe pike, between this city and Chillicothe, there are twelve white crosses. One of these is at Nash where a resident of Columbus was killed when his car skidded and turned turtle and the victim was crushed to death when the car upset.

BOOTLEGGING PRACTICED AT CAMP PERRY

Prohibition Officers Maintain Constant Vigil and Arrests are Imminent.

Toledo, O., Aug. 7. (UP).—Federal officials today began a sweeping investigation of alleged bootlegging within the gates of Camp Perry, Ohio.

The inquiry follows the arrest of two men who were arraigned before a United States commissioner at Port Clinton and formally charged with violating the prohibition laws.

Officials said the men were driving a car at the camp entrance containing twenty gallons of liquor.

Prohibition enforcement officers have maintained constant vigil at the camp, officials declared and arrests are imminent.

The investigation was launched, it was announced, when two men told dry agents they could find all the liquor they wanted on the Camp Perry reservation.

AMUSEMENTS

A most unusual picture is offered now at the Met theater in "The Prairie Wife," a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer release, produced and directed by Hugo Ballin.

"The Prairie Wife," is a screen adaptation of the novel of Arthur Stringer, and tells an interesting story of the struggles and hardships of a cultured eastern girl who marries a young engineer and goes to live with him on his prairie homestead.

Chaddie had suddenly lost her wealth; her fiancé, the Honorable Theobald Gastav, is more attentive to a little Russian dancer than to her; and Duncan Trgyl, a lovable Scotchman, once more appears on the scene. She realizes she cannot marry a foreigner, tells Duncan she'll marry him, and their wedding trip is back to the Canadian northwest where Duncan is an engineer, and where she gets her first taste of hardship. But her love for her "Dinkie-Dunk" makes it possible for her to find happiness even without luxury and the arrival of Duncan Jr., brings the picture to a happy close.

Told with simplicity, feeling and a great deal of humor, "The Prairie Wife," is indeed something different in the way of pictures. It is told in a series of interesting incidents in the life of the young couple, rather than in a detailed plot.

Dorothy Devore, clever young comedienne, who has been starred in comedies for several years, steps out into drama with the leading role in this picture, and proves that her long training in lighter pictures has given her excellent background for dramatic work. She is an appealing, winsome young miss, with a feeling for drama as well as comedy.

Herbert Rawlinson provides excellent contrast to the delicate Miss Devore, as her virile husband and does his usual good work.

The supporting cast include Gibson Gowland, who was established as an actor of note in the leading role of Erich Von Stroheim's "Greedy," Leslie Stuart Frances Prim Erich von Ritzau and others. The picture contains some exquisite photography by James Diamond.

STOUTSVILLE CAMPMEETING. Stoutsville campmeeting began Wednesday, July 29, and will continue to August 9.

All this week Dr. Ira B. Warner, of Akron will speak twice each day. Rev. Upson will have charge of the music throughout the entire campmeeting.

OHIO'S WHEAT
CROP LOWEST
IN 13 YEARS

Survey Shows Production 44 per Cent Below Last Year —Harvest Normal.

The wheat crop in Ohio this year is approximately 44 per cent below last year, 40 per cent below the five year average and the poorest crop in 13 years, according to figures recently compiled by Ralph F. Taber, rural economist at Ohio State university.

"Much wheat, particularly thru southwestern Ohio, was abandoned this spring, and in many other states wheat will not make a good crop," writes Mr. Taber in Fax, a monthly publication to the Ohio extension workers in the field.

"According to present prospects," he continues, "Ohio will produce 21, 416,000 bushels as compared with 37, 313,000 last year and a five year average of nearly 35 millions. This means we have the poorest crop in Ohio since 1912. Kansas, which is normally the heaviest winter wheat producing state, will have less than half a crop. Spring wheat will apparently be about normal.

"For the whole United States the present forecast is 680 million bushels, which is almost 200 million below last year and about 150 million below the average of the last five years. It is the poorest yield in the United States as a whole in 14 years.

"There is a possibility of some importation of certain grades of wheat and exportation will doubtless amount to not over 50 million bushels. Wheat is a world commodity, as farmers in the United States realized last year when shortage in Canada and the Argentine boosted our bumper crop here by 50 cents a bushel."

EDUCATIONAL

State University Joins With Live Stock Exchange in Interesting Display.

What kind of beef cattle should an Ohio farmer buy this fall to make the most of the summer? Where can he buy with most profit? What is the best season for marketing? These questions are to be answered by beef cattle specialists from Chicago and Ohio State university at the State fair this fall.

The exhibit, which is to show 20 lots of feeder cattle, will be supplemented by market quotations from Chicago each day for each grade of cattle. J. E. Poole, who writes the market page for the Breeders Gazette and Paul Gerlaugh of the extension service at the university, will be on the grounds every day to explain the exhibit and answer questions.

The arrangement with the Chicago Livestock Exchange, which is to furnish the cattle, provides for the exhibition of these cattle in open pens near the cattle building on the State Fair grounds. Each lot will contain six head, five of which will be feeders and one in marketable condition.

The different lots will include two-year old steers of three grades, yearling steers of four grades, steer calves, cows, heifers, and heifer calves. In both the two year old and yearling lots there will be a lot each of fancy Herefords, Shorthorns and Angus.

According to Mr. Gerlaugh who has charge of the exhibit, this is the first time such an educational display has been made at the State fair.

Color-Blindness

Prof. H. E. Roaf has described a new method for the investigation of color-blindness. It consists in finding the wave length of light by which a color-match given by a color-blind person appears also to match for one of normal vision. It is evident when this has been found that the region of the spectrum in which the defect lies must also have been removed. The problem, therefore, is one of cutting off different regions of the spectrum and finding the wave-length limits of the smallest decrease in the spectrum for which the original and the comparison color match to a normal person. In 28 cases it was found that the defect is always in the red end of the spectrum.

Health and Home
FOOD FOR CHILDREN WHO TRAVEL

Many times, and especially during the summer months, mothers are forced to take their children on trips with them. During these trips, the parent is forced to contend with that ever-present and serious problem of food for the child.

As in almost every other case, the chief source of worry, during these periods, is the milk supply, its source, its purity and its food value. It is not always convenient to get market milk of dependable quality for, in many sections of the country, adequate facilities for its care are not provided. To meet the needs of mothers in these trying situations, science has provided a form of milk, conveniently carried and easily prepared. The cans are in two sizes, the one containing six ounces and the other sixteen.

Evaporated milk is just pure cows' milk with more than half of the water removed. None of its food value is lessened; in fact its digestibility is improved. It is easily mixed with water and is, undoubtedly, the most practical form of milk for use as a food for children. Some of the country's leading pediatricians recommend its use, employing the following formula:

From Sixth Week to Third Month.
Milk, evaporated 6 ounces
Lime water 3 ounces
Milk sugar 3 ounces
Boiled water 26 ounces
Seven feedings in twenty-four hours: 4 to 5 ounces at three-hour intervals during the day and four-hour intervals at night.

From Third Month to Fifth Month.
Milk, evaporated 7 1/2 ounces
Lime water 3 ounces
Milk sugar 2 ounces
Boiled water 29 1/2 ounces
Six feedings in twenty-four hours: 5 to 6 ounces at three-hour intervals during the day and a feeding at 10 p. m.

From Fifth to Seventh Month.
Milk, evaporated 10 ounces
Lime water 3 ounces
Milk sugar 2 ounces
Boiled water 29 ounces
Five feedings in twenty-four hours: 6 to 7 ounces at four-hour intervals during the day. Last feeding at ten at night.

From Seventh to Ninth Month.
Milk, evaporated 11 ounces
Lime water 3 ounces
Milk sugar 2 ounces
Boiled water 28 ounces
Four feedings in twenty-four hours: 7 to 9 ounces at four-hour intervals during the day. Last feeding at ten at night.

From Ninth to Twelfth Month.
Milk, evaporated 12 ounces
Lime water 3 ounces
Milk sugar 2 ounces
Boiled water 27 ounces
Four feedings in twenty-four hours: 8 to 9 ounces at four-hour intervals during the day. Last feeding at ten at night.

KEEPING WELL
4,000 WOMEN BURNED YEARLY
DR. FREDERICK R. GREEN
Editor of "HEALTH"

BURNS kill more women than men. This is the only kind of an accident in which the mortality is greater among women than men. Figures covering a long period show that out of every five deaths from burns, three are deaths of women and girls. Burns stand forth among the causes of accidental deaths, being surpassed only by automobile accidents, falls and drownings.

In 1922 there were nearly 6,300 deaths from burns alone in the United States. Of these, about 45 per cent occurred in the first five years of life. At this age the mortality for male and female are about the same. This means that up to five years of age a boy is just as apt to be burned to death as a girl. After five years of age, however, more than twice as many girls die from burns.

Up to five years boys and girls are dressed much alike. After this age boys generally wear close-fitting woolen clothes which have no loose trimmings and are not liable to come in contact with fire.

But girls wear dresses of light cotton material. They are trimmed with laces and ribbons, which can easily come in contact with an open fire or an exposed gas jet. Women, too, often form the foolish and dangerous habit of lighting matches on the soles of their shoes, even when they are wearing long and flowing skirts. Matches carelessly dropped on the floor may easily set fire to a woman's skirt, but would do no damage to a man's close-fitting woolen trousers.

Whatever the explanation, the fact remains that every year nearly four thousand women and girls are burned to death.

Burns are classified by surgeons according to their effect on the skin. A burn of the first degree is one which reddens the skin; a second-degree burn is one in which the skin is blistered, while in a burn of the third degree the skin is burned and blackened throughout its entire thickness.

The danger to life in a burn depends not so much on the depth of the burn as on the area covered. Even a first-degree burn is almost always fatal, if one-third or more of the skin of the body is covered.

In women and children whose clothes catch fire, death usually follows because the entire body is burned. Greater care and watchfulness will save six thousand lives every year now lost through carelessness.

World Has Little Use for the Hobo Laborer

He is almost a memory, this old-time hobo laborer; he is gone because the need for him is gone. The industrial conquest of the country is accomplished; what remains to be done is extension, development, stabilization.

Industry no longer calls for pioneer labor, but for labor only. And the man who feels an urge to go away out there and help out on that big job has a hard time of it. Alaska, Canada, Mexico, the Argentine—yes, a man can strike out for those places. But there has been no excited talk in employment offices about work in foreign parts for a long time.

Panama is past, it has been a long time since the Canadian transcontinental roads were spiked, and the government railroad in Alaska—oh, lads, where'll we go? The Roman soldiers asked the same question, no doubt, when Rome conquered no longer, and so did adventurous sailors when the great days of the exploring navigators were done. And what became of Mark Twain's hordes of rivermen? Where are the snows of yesteryear?

Camp life still goes on, of course, in the woods, on construction work, and in the oil fields. But these camps are nowadays populated largely by laborers who support families, and who own cars, tailored clothes and bank accounts. The old-timers spin yarns of the happy days as they crouch around the bunkhouse stove, and they sometimes inspire a young laborer who has the soul of a roving adventurer. If he tries the box cars, he finds a dead life. If he journeys in an old flivver, he discovers something better, but not adventure.

The dance hall, the joy-ride, an occasional moonshine spree, poker and dice and the punchboards—these are the most spectacular elements in the life of the American laborer today. Its last raw, vivid colors went out with the hobo, and only the drama of sweat and effort is left. But this plain, simple drama has significance and merit, and, finally, the best words to be said for the hobo is that he was a hero in it.—James Stevens, in Century Magazine.

Pike's Peak Or—

The late Antonio de Novellis, the veteran musical director, who superintended the original American production of the "Mikado," has a very low opinion of jazz.

"The men who declare that jazz is a sign of progress in American music," Mr. De Novellis said one day in Flushing, "are as ignorant of music as the farmer was ignorant of photography."

"A farmer took his bride to a photographer and said:

"We want the wife's picture took."

"Full length or bust?" the photographer asked.

"The farmer gave a hearty laugh and slapped the photographer on the back.

"All right; make it full length, young feller," he said, and if she busts I'll pay for the machine."

Dollar Came Back

In 1878 a Confederate veteran named Doherty left South Carolina for Tennessee with his family. Ill fortune went with them for a while, for their home burned down and members of the family became ill, so that when the only money in their possession was an inflated silver dollar they parted with it reluctantly. Mr. Doherty goes on with the story: "Not a dollar has since fallen into my hands without my scrutinizing it to discover those initials. A few days ago a man called to me on the street and said, 'Here is the dollar I owe you.' As was my custom for 40 years, I looked for the initials, and to my great joy that dollar had the letters W. E. D. engraved on it."

Baseball in Argentina

Baseball has at last gained a place among Argentine sports, though as yet a small one. Two teams, composed of natives, have been organized, coached by Americans, one representing the Buenos Aires Y. M. C. A., the other the Gymnasium and Fencing club, the principal athletic club of Buenos Aires. Increasingly large numbers of spectators watch the games which they play with each other, with teams of American residents, and with one team of Japanese residents. They field and bat well, but have yet to develop pitchers able to fool their American or Japanese opponents often enough to win a game from them.

He'll Never Get In

William Milligan Sloane, the historian, is president of the American Academy of Arts and Letters, and in New York the other day a young novelist of the psycho-analytic or jazz school ridiculed the distinguished institution mercilessly. He said the French academy was no good, and the American academy was only an imitation of it.

When the jazz novelist got through Professor Sloane gave a good-natured laugh and said:

"Our American academy is like death. People only joke about it when they know there's no danger of its coming their way."

Helium Used as Starter

Helium, the non-combustible gas used in filling the lighter-than-air craft, has found another use. It has always been impossible on the Los Angeles to carry enough compressed air intact for the purpose of "kicking over" the engines in starting. Experiments conducted at Lakehurst, the naval air station, have developed the fact that this gas can be used successfully in starting the big motors of the craft.

Trainer of Boxers Gives Diet Hints

To Kid Howard of Chicago and his new system of training and conditioning, Sammy Mandell, the present lightweight boxing champion of the world, gives a great deal of the credit for his meteoric rise to stardom in the world of pugilism. When Mandell first started fighting, he was small, weak and undeveloped, but after turning himself over to Howard it was only a short time before he took the decision from Sid Terris of New York that resulted in him being recognized as the boss of the lightweights.

Sammy Mandell. Howard's system is unique in that it works no hardship on the athlete who is in training. Unlike the systems that have been used for years, this prominent and successful trainer of men makes conditioning more of a pleasure than a distasteful necessity. Instead of demanding that his men eat only certain things he advises them to eat what they want and when they want it as long as it is cooked in a proper manner. Mr. Howard, in a recent interview on the subject of diet and condition, said, in part: "Years ago it was a task, and an unpleasant one, for a boxer or a wrestler to train for a bout because he was forced to literally starve himself unless he wanted to eat steaks and chops at all times. I remember that when I was training for a match, I was so truly tired of steaks that I choked every time that I ate one but it was steak or nothing. I advise my men to diet at all times but it is perfectly possible for them to diet and, at the same time, to enjoy their food. My only 'don't' is the one regarding the eating of such combinations as fresh milk and cheese, and fruit with cream. In fact, I advocate the use of evaporated milk entirely. Vegetables are fine and the more that the athlete eats the better he will be for it. Pastry, of certain kinds, such as homemade pies, cakes and cookies, if made correctly, and with pure butter, evaporated milk and pure lard, are very beneficial. Stews and soups are ideal. Taken as a whole, any food, with a few exceptions, is all right if properly cooked and eaten without gorging."

And one has but to look at Howard, who is the most religious user of his own system, to realize that it is a success.

PORTSMOUTH SLAYER PAYS DEATH PENALTY

Lonzy Traylor, 21, Electrocuted For Murder of Filling Station Man.

Columbus, Aug. 7.—Lonzy Traylor, 21, Portsmouth, was electrocuted at 1:06 a. m. today for killing Edward Funk, Sciotoville, filling station attendant, during a robbery Oct. 21, 1924. Traylor had confessed committing the crime, but made no statement this morning when brought into the death chamber.

The Emerick Co., Portsmouth undertakers, took the body to Portsmouth for funeral and burial.

Final pleas before the board of clemency failed to bring a recommendation of mercy. Jason Adkins, 33, Traylor's accomplice, was executed in May.

Traylor's wife, Mrs. Velma Traylor, Firebrick, Ky., did not visit her husband yesterday, the only ones coming to the death cell to pay last respects being his brother, Monroe Robinson, his sister, Mrs. Stella Jacobs, and a cousin, Lula Burchett.

His last supper, served at 5:30 p. m., consisted of chicken, creamed peas, sliced tomatoes, ice cream, cake, and a gallon of lemonade.

RINGWORM

DR. FREDERICK A. GREEN
Editor of "HEALTH"

EVERYBODY has seen a ringworm. Many persons have had one. It may happen to anyone; it may afflict any part of the body.

Several little red spots, scaly and elevated above the surface, appear on the skin. They spread from each red spot as a center, clearing up in the middle as they go, until they form a series of red rings, surrounding a patch of white skin. In from three or four days to two weeks after their first appearance the patches are from half an inch to an inch in diameter. The rings may then gradually disappear or may remain stationary, turning to a yellowish brown, or they may become inflamed and very painful.

These spots may be on the face, neck, hands and forearms, on the palms of the hands or the soles of the feet. Ringworm of the scalp causes the hair to fall out in circular patches. Ringworm of the face is popularly called barber's itch.

Ringworm, in any degree and on any part of the body, is due to a little fungus growing in the superficial layers of the skin. It is highly contagious. It may be taken by personal contact or by using toilet articles or clothes of infected persons. It is particularly common in schools and institutions such as orphan asylums, day nurseries and similar institutions where children come in close contact with each other. Barber shops, beauty parlors, hair-dressing establishments, laundries and public baths may spread this troublesome disease. It may also be carried by dogs, cats, rabbits, horses and cows.

Ringworm is a singularly stubborn affliction, and although it usually disappears in from several days to a few weeks, under proper treatment, it is very apt to return, either by a new infection or by some of the fungi being left alive in the skin. It is, of course, more stubborn and more difficult to control on the scalp and face. Here the hair or beard must be cut short or shaved in order to expose the skin.

The skin should be washed clean with hot water and green soap and one of a number of germicides applied. Painting the patches with tincture of iodine is excellent, if one does not mind the temporary disfigurement. For young children the iodine should be diluted with an equal amount of alcohol. Sulphur, salicylic or benzolic acid ointment may be used. Your doctor will tell you which one to use and how strong the ointment should be.

Cranberry Cultivation
Out of a total of 29,964 acres of cranberries in the United States, 14,000 are in Massachusetts and 13,000 in New Jersey. Cranberries are little grown outside of the United States. About 100 acres are being cultivated in Nova Scotia and they have been tried with little success in Norway, the Netherlands and Denmark.

Now, therefore, we, the Council of the City of Circleville, Ohio, have listened to and have carefully considered said petition and three-fourths of the number elected or appointed to Council concurring, believe that if the part of Hill Alley is vacated as prayed for it will not be detrimental to the general interest and that there is good cause for granting said prayer and that it should be done. Now, therefore, be it ordained by the Council of the City of Circleville, Ohio, three-fourths of the number elected, or appointed thereto concurring:

Section 1. That the part of Lawrence Ebert's Cedar Hill Addition to the City of Circleville, Ohio, which consists of a strip of land 16 1/2 feet in width and 208 feet in length, and which extends from the South line of Edison Avenue to the North line of Ebert Alley, be, and the same is hereby vacated.

"Outlaws," the Jesse Jameses and the Robin Hoods of the horse world, the wildest and meanest animals of the equine species in the West, are now in the western corrals, ready for the battle to the finish with the best cowboys the ranges produce. These outlaws and their human rivals will engage in thrilling tests for supremacy at the big Chicago Roundup and World's Championship Rodeo, to be held in the Grant Park Stadium August 15 to 23, under the direction of Tex Austin.

In every outfit there is at least one cayuse that refuses to be tamed and broken for the saddle, no matter how many times they are roped, hogtied and ridden. They will take off into the air and go through every conceivable gyration. They will sunfish, double-O, corkscrew, cake walk, high roll, pivot and twist until they succeed in tearing their rider loose, if it is possible to do so. There will be outlaw horses in the Chicago Roundup that never have been conquered. When such animals as Headlight, Teapot, King Tut, Satan, Overall Bill, Deerfoot and Sundown get into action in the Chicago Stadium there will be some fast and dizzy riding. That's when the big throngs will yell: "Ride 'im, Cowboy" and "Let 'er buck."

Leonard Stroud, noted buster, trick rider and lariat tosser, who has won fame at many of the local rodeos, has a string of the meanest bronchos in the world, which he is conditioning on his Colorado ranch for shipment to the Chicago Roundup. He says that each one of the horses he will bring will be equivalent to about 800 pounds of dynamite. Some of them, he predicts, never will be "ridden out" and "no cowboy ever will stick in the saddle till the horse is under subjection," he asserts.

RADIO TRANSMISSION OF MUSIC

TRANSMITTING music from the brain of a composer to radio listeners requires ten important steps, as are shown in the accompanying illustrations. An opera—Lohengrin—is created in the brain of Wagner. Then it is placed in musical symbols in score form. The first stage shows an orchestra conducting it. From the radio, the music, in the form of electric current, travels through a microphone to an amplifying apparatus. After traveling via telephone wires from the amplifying room adjoining the studio, in Cincinnati, to the transmitting equipment in Harrison, Ohio, about 25 miles away, it is sent into space in audible frequencies. As radio waves, the music travels hundreds of miles and is picked up by the receiving antenna in the home of the radio listeners. It passes through the receiving set where it is transformed into audible frequencies and by means of a Musicone or head-phones, is heard by the listeners. Thus does music, transmitted by radio, travel through ten stages from composer to listeners.

SOME CHICKENS

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Tootle, of Monroe township, are in the chicken business on a large scale with over a thousand White Leghorn biddies working daily for the benefit of their exchequer.

In addition to eggs Mr. and Mrs. Tootle have a herd of Guernsey and other cows; the milk from the herd and eggs are gathered up every morning by a Columbus firm which sends a truck for them.

Their modern home and out-buildings bespeak the success they are enjoying from chickens and cows.

BIG UTILITIES CONSOLIDATE IN THIS STATE

Change in Companies Whose Capital is Many Millions of Dollars.

Columbus, O., Aug. 7 (UP). — A $170,000,000 utility merger involving a change in control of the Columbus Railway Power and Light company and other Ohio utilities, was reported in dispatches from New York Friday.

The proposed consolidation was said to be under direction of the United Light and Power company which has a controlling interest in the local concern.

Other utilities included, the report said, were the American Light and Traction company, the Laclede Gas and Electric company and the Continental Gas and Electric company, also controlled by the United Light and Power company.

Vice president, C. C. Slater of the Columbus company, said he had heard nothing of the reported merger.

Cyrus S. Eaton, Cleveland, who engineered purchase of the controlling shares in the rail-light company, was said to be one of the main figures in the proposed consolidation.
